

Government Of Bonn Republic To Oppose Recreation Of Army

Truce Plan Barred

MANILA (UP)—The government today scorned a cease-fire proposal and alerted air force fighters and bombers for action against guerrillas entrenched in the Batangas coastal hills south of Manila.

The cease-fire was suggested by Batangas provincial and municipal officials to permit an attempt at peaceful settlement and allow farmers caught in the crossfire of battle to evacuate.

But Brig-Gen. Alberto Ramos, chief of the constabulary, said the government would not agree to any proposals to suspend operations.

He said fighters and bombers based at Lipa City, 15 miles north of Batangas, would support four constabulary and one army companies in an attempt to dislodge and smash the rebels.

He said he could not confirm reports that constabulary dead in a week of fighting had reached 27. Only two guerrillas are known to have been killed.

Say Britain Plans To Recognize Red China

LONDON (UP)—Informed sources said today Britain has decided to grant de jure recognition to Communist China.

The sources would not disclose when recognition would be announced, but hinted it may follow adjournment of the United Nations' General Assembly, now meeting at Lake Success, N.Y.

Informed sources said there was no need for further discussions on recognition of Communist China.

"We have done all the talking we want to do," they said. "When it comes to recognition of the Peking regime, it will be de jure. There is no advantage in the half-way house of de facto recognition."

De jure recognition is full recognition of the legal existence of a government.

De jure recognition means that one nation recognizes the legal existence of a government in another country, but does not establish full diplomatic relations.

The sources said recognition of the Communist regime would not be discussed at the Commonwealth Foreign Ministers' conference in Colombo, Ceylon, next January.

They said none of the subjects to be discussed in Colombo would call for a decision, which was "one reason why recognition of Communist China will not be discussed there."

They said discussions on recognition have been carried out "through other channels" and "everybody" was agreed on the timing.

Suspect Arrested

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A new suspect has been arrested by Vancouver city police in connection with the shooting Tuesday of Kenneth Sargeant, on bail pending hearing on charges of assault, forgery and dealing in stolen cheques.

Police said they were holding a 26-year-old taxi driver, but had released three other suspects questioned after the shooting.

Sargeant, wounded in the groin by two bullets, was in "good" condition in the Vancouver General Hospital today.

French Poles Raided

PARIS (UP)—Police raided Polish organizations throughout Paris today and seized the Polish vice-consul at Lille.

Police said "about a dozen" Poles were detained for questioning and "large quantities" of documents were confiscated.

Despite official disclaimers, the new "get tough" policy against Poland was regarded by many observers as a direct result of the arrest in Warsaw of a French diplomat on charges of espionage and the expulsion of two others on similar reasons.

At Lille, near the Belgian frontier, police arrested the Polish vice-consul, named Szczerbinski, and held him for questioning. The French Foreign Office said Szczerbinski did not enjoy diplomatic immunity.

RED CROSS VISITED

Fifty carloads of police carried out the Paris raids on Polish organizations, including the Polish Red Cross, boy scouts and veterans' society.

The French arrested a secretary to the Polish military attaché in Paris Wednesday.

Some 100 French police inspectors led the dawn raids, principally in the west end of Paris. A Surete national spokesman said some Polish organizations in France had been "carrying out activities contrary to the public good."

Canada Must Decide On Atomic Future, Says Board Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie said today he feels the time has come for the government and Parliament to decide on Canada's next major step forward in the atomic field.

The chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board told a Commons committee he has his own views but can only discuss them at a closed meeting.

He was answering questions from Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver-Quadrant). He told Mr. Green last week, it's up to the government and Parliament to decide whether Canada should go into the production of fissionable materials.

His role now is in the field of research and development at the Chalk River plant, 125 miles from here.

Mr. Green asked today how the committee could help the atomic effort.

Dr. Mackenzie said the big problem for the country, one which has been exercising the scientists, is "where do we go from here?"

Western Allies To Cease Dismantling 18 Large Factories

BONN, Germany (UP)—The West German government pledged itself today to oppose recreation of a German Army. The pledge was contained in a 10-point Allied-German protocol which the government signed.

The protocol, in effect a list of agreements and concessions between the Allied High Commission and the West German government, commits Germany to "maintain the demilitarization of the federal territory and to endeavor by all means in its power to prevent the recreation of armed forces of any kind."

BONN, Germany (AP)—The Western Allies agreed today to stop the dismantling of 18 big western German factories in return for German pledges to help keep the peace in Europe. The plants to be removed from the dismantling list include the August Thyssen steel works, one of the largest in Europe.

All dismantling in divided Berlin will stop under the agreement announced today by the Allied High Commission with the West German government.

Business Offices Of Press Wires In Argentina Seized

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An Argentine congressional committee today seized the business offices of the United Press and the Associated Press.

News operations continued normally in both the United Press and Associated Press offices. The committee said specifically it was interested only in business office functions, and not in the editorial ones.

Business offices of the four newspapers in Buenos Aires opposing the regime of President Juan D. Peron were seized Wednesday.

While federal police stood guard today, government auditors examined the financial records of the newspapers. The committee said it would investigate the source of the funds of the newspapers and the two news agencies.

It said it was probing for possible connections between the press and the money spent by "Union Democratica," left-wing Liberal coalition which opposed Peron for President in February, 1946.

Led by the two-man congressional committee, government forces took over the business offices of the newspapers Wednesday.

The two congressional committee men arrived unannounced at the United Press office at 9:25 a.m. They were accompanied by reporters and photographers and armed federal police.

Football-Minded M.P.'s To Play Hookey On Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur Smith (P.C., Calgary West), solemnly informed Prime Minister St. Laurent today there must be some mistake behind the Prime Minister's request that the Commons sit Saturday to speed the drive for prorogation.

The sittings, he said, should be called for Varsity Stadium, Toronto, because that was where a majority of the members would be watching Calgary and Montreal in the Grey Cup final.

The Prime Minister—whose notice of a Saturday sitting was placed on this morning's order paper—equally solemnly replied that he hoped members' sense of public responsibility "will prevail over their desires" to see the game.

Mr. Smith promptly assured him that, with him, the final comes first.

The Speaker, Ross Macdonald, assured Mr. Smith his sympathies were all with him.

A second notice of intention to play hookey came from Frank Lennard (P.C., Wentworth, Ont.), a former Canadian Rugby Football Union official, who said: "It's an insult to the sports fraternity" to have the House sit Saturday.

He said the Calgary-Ottawa final last year did more for east-west unity than "this House has been able to do in the last 10 years." The game this year would do the same.

The Speaker finally cut the discussion short by saying the motion for the Saturday sitting was not before the House yet anyway. It is due to come up officially tomorrow.

Competitive Musical Festival Next Spring

AUDREY SLD. JOHNSON

After a lapse of more than 10 years, Victoria is once again to have a musical festival. First sessions will be held in the late spring of 1950 and they will be competitive in nature.

These decisions were reached at a meeting held Wednesday night in the schoolroom of First United Church. More than 50 people, representative of active musical circles in the city, attended. Dr. Rodger Manning acted as chairman with Miss Gwen Woolcock as secretary.

Discussion was lively and ranged from the value of the festival movement and its effect on musical standards, to the merits of competition. Concerning the latter, the feeling was general that a non-competitive festival defeated its own purpose—which is to raise the level of performance. Instances were cited of Canadian festivals whose standards had declined when competition was dropped.

It was considered desirable that for the present Canadian adjudicators should preside over the Victoria festival, but this matter, together with financing, question of extent and scope of festival classes and exact date, were decisions the new executive and committees will make.

A nominating committee, headed by Miss Una Calvert, was elected, and will report its selections at a meeting to be held next Wednesday in First United schoolroom.

Dr. Manning enumerated the points of value of a musical festival. Good sportsmanship and progressive standards were the more important, but he also referred to the inducement to individuals to become active in music, rather than mere listeners, and to the value of musical participation in times of stress.

Fire In Ancient Jerusalem Church

Above is the well in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

JERUSALEM (UP)—A fire today threatened one of Christendom's holiest shrines, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The fire broke out just before midnight in the cupola of the ancient church built over Christ's tomb. It was still burning this afternoon, although it had been reported under control during the morning.

A thick pillar of smoke was still rising into the cloudless sky over Jerusalem at midday. Fire fighters from the Arab Legion and the Old City's administration believed they had confined the blaze to the wooden blocks of the dome. Melting lead dripping down handicapped the fire fighters.

Gaping holes showed through the dome, which seemed in imminent danger of collapse.

Bill To Nationalize British Iron, Steel Given Royal Assent

LONDON (Reuter)—The government's bill to nationalize the iron and steel industry became law tonight when it was given Royal Assent.

A few hours earlier the predominantly Conservative House of Lords had agreed to a government proposal originally made by the Lords that operation of the bill be postponed until after next year's general election.

The Lords had proposed that the date of transfer of assets of the industry to the state should be July 1, 1951, but the government amended this to Jan. 1, 1951. The Lords today accepted the amendment.

This means that a decision on nationalization of the industry is in effect left to the electorate. If the government is returned it will proceed with nationalization. If the Conservatives win, they will keep the industry under private enterprise.

Turkeys Cheaper

VANCOUVER (CP)—Good news for Christmas shoppers—turkey is expected to be 10 to 15 cents cheaper this year.

Premier Calls Cities For Conferences On Housing

Premier Johnson announced today he would call municipal authorities to Victoria Dec. 12 and 13 to discuss the government's proposed housing scheme.

Main purpose of conferences will be to determine the extent to which municipal authorities are willing to participate in the housing scheme.

This week-end invitations will go out to the mayors and reeves of 40 communities with populations of 5,000 or more. R. R. F. Sewell, secretary of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, is being asked to represent the smaller centres.

Mr. Johnson will preside over the meetings. Municipal Affairs Minister R. C. MacDonald and his deputy, B. C. Bracewell, along with David Mansur of Ottawa, president of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, will also attend.

Mr. Johnson proposes that Victoria and 31 other Vancouver Island communities meet him and the others on the afternoon of Dec. 12.

Ss. Aegeon, formerly the Princess Alice.

Drifting Helplessly Off California Coast

The 38-year-old Greek passenger ship Aegeon, formerly the C.P.R. coast ship Princess Alice, which sailed from Victoria for Piraeus, Greece, last Saturday, has had engine trouble and is drifting about 50 miles off San Pedro, it was reported here today by her owners.

Aboard is a crew of 23 under command of Capt. Gerasimos Panos.

Spyro Typaldus, of the Greek shipping firm of Typaldus Bros., said he had received a radio message that the Aegeon had developed engine trouble off the California coast, possibly from lack of fuel. He said the vessel was not in any immediate danger and was at present awaiting arrival of a towboat.

Approval of sale of the Aegeon and the Princess Adelaide, now the Angelika, to Typaldus Bros. was received here from C.P.R. headquarters June 24. Following refit, the Angelika sailed in September.

Early this week it was reported Typaldus Bros. had agreed to buy a third C.P.R. coast ship, the 41-year-old Princess Charlotte.

The Aegeon, launched by Swan-Hunter and Co., Newcastle, Eng., in 1911, arrived in Victoria Dec. 22 of the same year and went into the Victoria-Vancouver service Jan. 18, 1912.

She served variously on the triangle route, the night service between here and the mainland, and then the Alaska service during the summers until 1941 when she was returned to service here after the old Princess Marguerite and Princess Kathleen were requisitioned for overseas war service.

She was retired from service June 21, 1947. Her last C.P.R. master was Capt. Henry C. Andersen.

Youths Plead Guilty

In an unexpected development in Assize Court this morning four Victoria youths charged with the rape of a 33-year-old Latvian woman near Thetis Lake early Oct. 15 changed pleas of not guilty to pleas of guilty.

The trial before Mr. Justice J. M. Coady opened Wednesday and was expected to continue till Friday afternoon until today's reversal of plea brought the case to an abrupt conclusion.

Following the pleas of guilty, the all-male jury announced a similar verdict without leaving their seats.

The four young men were Robert William Paterson, 119 Olive Street; John Frederick Erickson, 1025 Pandora Avenue; Robert James Norton, 218 Oswego Street, and Clare Ross Hamilton, 467 Gorge Road. All are 19 years of age.

Though several witnesses were on hand to give evidence, Mr. Justice Coady today heard testimony of only two after the guilty pleas—Dr. E. L. McNiven, who examined the woman following the incident, and that of the woman herself.

Crown prosecutor was W. H. M. Haldane and defence counsel, James Proudfoot.

The youths were remanded in custody for sentence at the conclusion of the assizes.

South Africa Loan Finds Few Takers

LONDON (Reuter)—South Africa's £10,000,000 ($31,000,000) loan floated in London Wednesday proved the worst underwriting failure in recent memory on the gilt-edged market. Only 16 per cent had been subscribed when the market closed.

Underwriters were left with 84 per cent of the loan, which carries 3½ per cent interest and is redeemable in 1965-67.

This was described in the market as "a dreadful result, showing a lack of money in London for such issues and absence of real confidence in the gilt-edged market."

South Africa's and Britain's political uncertainties were also mentioned as contributing to the failure of the loan.

By-Election In East

Czech Bishops Tell Priests To Resist Seizing Of Church

PRAGUE (UP)—Czechoslovakia's Roman Catholic bishops ordered priests today to resist the Communist government's campaign to seize control of the church and threatened to unfrock any who refuse.

The bishops told the priests they should defend the church even at the risk of their lives.

The call for resistance was issued by the bishops after a secret meeting last week to map their campaign against the government's drive to break church resistance.

They said any priest who "refuses obedience to his bishops betrays Christ... his brethren and to the law of the church... and the nation."

"Such a man has no more right as a Catholic priest. Jurisdiction, including that of the confessional, will be stripped from him."

The bishops' statement was the church's answer to drastic new church laws which the government put into effect Nov. 1 making the church virtually a government body and priests servants of the state.

Promise Not To Recreate Armed Forces

BONN (UP)—Western Germany formally joined the Western bloc as an economic partner today and vowed not to recreate "armed forces of any kind."

A protocol signed by the three Western Allied high commissioners and German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer gives the new republic wide economic powers and calls for a slowing down of the dismantling of German factories, including many major steel and synthetic rubber plants.

The Allies promise to promote German participation in the organization of European economic co-operation and in the Ruhr international authority. They promise to allow west Germany "consular and commercial relations with those countries where such relations appear advantageous."

But Germany's price for these concessions is to remain demilitarized. The price was demanded by its small western neighbors and France, who suffered from German aggression twice since 1914.

The agreement stemmed from the Big Three Foreign Ministers' conference in Paris and from follow-up talks between Adenauer and the high commissioners.

Auto Recovered

PENTICTON (CP)—The escape car used by two bandits after a hold-up at the Keremeos liquor store has been found, police announced here.

It was located Wednesday, ditched in a creek near Kaledien, 10 miles south of here, and search was on today for the bandits, believed hiding in the district.

In the robbery Tuesday, G. A. Scott, liquor vendor, was held up by two men and robbed of $138. They snatched two bottles of liquor as they fled the store.

The car was seized from Col. Gordon Y. L. Crossley as he drove from Princeton to Kelowna. He was left bound and gagged in an abandoned shack.

1,000,000 Chungking Folk Quietly Await Arrival Of Reds

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING (AP)—The majority of Chungking's more than 1,000,000 population waited stoically today for the coming transition from Nationalist to Communist rule.

Their main hope was that the changeover would be peaceful. They went about their work and pleasure as usual, providing a vivid contrast with the rush and bustle of those—mostly government employees and their dependents—who are leaving.

Air transport out was still limited as a result of the recent civil aviation desertion by the country's two main airlines. Only the planes of retired U.S. Maj.-Gen. Claire Chennault's airline were on the wing in and out of here.

Bus and truck traffic to Chengtu, capital of Szechwan, continued heavy. Chengtu is expected to be the first stopping place of Premier Yen Hsi-shan's new mobile cabinet. Yen says the cabinet will accompany the fighting forces.

The main Communist threat to Chungking appeared to be developing from the northeast, where Red forces were skirting different towns on the Yangtze River in their advance on this provincial capital.

One Woman's Day

By NANCY HODGES

TOTS AND TOYLAND

EVERY YEAR about this time I set about the task of getting the earliest of my Christmas shopping done in earnest. And the first thing I usually do is to visit the various "Toylands" in search of toys for the tots to whom I bear the vicarious responsibility of godmother.

Quite frankly I admit that there is no other phase of Christmas shopping from which I derive such pleasure and fun as this. For it seems as if each succeeding year brings bigger and better Toylands to town.

While it was too early for Santa Claus to have appeared on the scene, there was the traditional igloo, house, or throne, or something, waiting for his arrival, and a background of spectacular, mechanically worked tableaux to add the seasonable thrill.

PLAYTHINGS AND PEACE

AS TO THE TOYS themselves, even the most casual observer must be struck with the transition from toys of war to toys of peace. For some years past tin soldiers, formidable tanks, planes and guns have been very much in evidence, along with replicas of the atomic bomb and other destructive "toys" of war.

So there is a comforting feeling in seeing that toys once again are following the trend of the times and featuring more peacetime pursuits in the shape of astra-domed, streamlined trains, workmanlike trucks and tractors, fully-equipped fire engines and diesel engines, mechanical sets and, of course, animals galore for the small fry.

Everywhere you turn it's plastic. Trucks and trains, doll's house furniture, toy cooking utensils, tiny animals—the former tin and wood have been largely superseded by the new material.

BABY DOLLS

TOYS FOR little girls don't vary so much over the years, except that the service-like nurses and Waacs that appeared in miniature during the war have almost disappeared, giving way to the more glamorous type.

Talking of dolls, the toymakers have really gone to town on the baby dolls this year. Not only are they being made with almost human skin, and close their eyes and say "Mamma" and "Papa," but on being fed with a bottle they behave just as human babies do!

Even the games have gone modern. "Snakes and ladders," "Ludo" and the other old familiar games have given place to more complicated affairs which teach traffic safety or enable the youngster to dabble in world affairs! Doll's houses have gone modern, too—reflecting the newest ideas in architecture, while pre-fabricated housing and farm sets are geared to interest small fry puzzling over housing shortages.

CHILDREN THE SAME

BUT IN MY excursions to the various toy departments I noticed that while toys may change over the years children remain much the same as they have always been. In war they play happily with tanks and soldiers; in peace they take just as happily to trains and trucks.

I was intrigued by one crumb of a boy, about two-ish, who was fascinated by a plush terrier that could be pushed by a handle. His doting dad got him away from it several times, but as soon as his back was turned the tiny tot was back again, patting and talking to the plush puppy.

Another small boy, a little older, cried lustily when his harassed mother, evidently hurrying to catch a bus, had to carry him forcibly from a wonderful replica of a model sports car, big enough to hold him.

THRILL OF CHRISTMAS

THEN THERE was the little girl who had her mind set on a cuddly, lovable-looking baby doll, and who didn't want to take any chances on waiting till Christmas. She simply took it off the counter and walked off with it, crooning over her new baby—until the saleswoman caught up with her.

And when her mother and young brother, plus the saleswoman, assured her that Santa Claus might bring it if she were a good girl, she muttered with gusto, as if she hadn't much faith in the genial old saint—or had been listening to the psychologists.

But those are the things which go to make this pre-Christmas season the delightful time it is. And make one wish that every child, everywhere, could be as assured of a happy Christmas as most of Canada's youngsters fortunately are.

Opposition Motions On Combines Bill Heavily Defeated

OTTAWA (CP)—Rules of the Commons prevented opposition members Wednesday from obtaining formal votes on motions censuring the government for the way it handled a report into an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry.

Twice opposition members moved amendments of censure. Twice the attempts were turned back by Speaker Ross Macdonald, who ruled the amendments out of order. Appeals against his rulings were defeated by large majorities.

Both amendments were to a motion calling for second reading—approval in principle—to a bill aimed at strengthening Canada's anti-combine legislation.

Blocked by the rules from reaching their objective, the opposition relaxed its attacks on the government long enough for the bill to be given second reading. Then John Diefenbaker (P.C., Lake Centre, Sask.) picked up where he had left off earlier and reiterated charges that the government deliberately "hid" the combines report.

Justice Minister Garson denied the charges and said he had not deliberately broken the law. He said the final draft of the report on the flour-milling industry reached him and was tabled within the 15 days required by law.

DIEFENBAKER SPEAKS

Mr. Diefenbaker sponsored one of the amendments. He moved it after Speaker Macdonald had told members they could only refer to sections of the milling report that were pertinent to the bill under discussion. This ruling would have had the effect of preventing any further opposition references to the alleged breach of the law by the government in its handling of the report.

F. A. McGregor, chief combines commissioner, resigned because the report, first delivered to Mr. Garson last Dec. 29, was not made public until early this month, nearly 10 months later.

Mr. Garson said changes were made in the report after it first reached his office and he did not receive it in final form until within the 15 days before it was tabled.

Later, Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) moved the second amendment.

The bill was given second reading without a dissenting voice.

Top Beef Price At Toronto Fair $2.40

TORONTO (BUP)—The 14-year-old winner of the King's Guineas at the Royal Winter Fair sold his prize baby steer at auction Wednesday for $2 a pound.

The 920-pound steer, owned by Duncan Campbell of Moffat, Ont., went to Eaton's department stores in a lively auction.

The reserve champion in the King's Guineas class, Vera Jacques of Jarvis, Ont., sold her 840-pound animal for $1 a pound to the same store.

The grand champion steer of the whole show, owned by G. F. Noad of Clairholm, Alta., was bought for $2.40 a pound by Loblaw Groceries. The steer weighed 975 pounds.

The reserve champion, an 880-pound steer owned by Lloyd Mack of Rockwood, Ont., went for $1 a pound to the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

In the dress beef class, the champion exhibitor drew a record price for the fair. The 492-pound carcass owned by William G. Jackson of Malton, Ont., went for $1.45 a pound to the Club Norman of Toronto. Last year's top price was 90 cents per pound.

McIntyre ranchers of Lethbridge, Alta., sold their champion pen of five Herefords at 40 cent a pound to Mid-State Packers of Buffalo, N.Y. McIntyre's champion carload of 12 steers, more than 13,000 pounds of beef on the hoof, sold at 41 cents to the Royal York Hotel here.

The Claresholm stockman, Ed Noad, sold his champion grade steer at 65 cents a pound to Canada Packers.

Young B.C. Scientist With Expedition To Antarctica

LONDON (CP)—The 700-ton Norwegian sealing ship Norsel set off Wednesday night for the Antarctic with 14 scientists who plan to spend two years on icy Queen Maud Land.

The scientists hope to solve the riddle of a snow-free area which is reported to exist on Antarctica, collect weather data, survey uncharted areas and measure the thickness of the ancient glaciers. They intend to stay in the Antarctic until April, 1952.

A member of the expedition, sponsored by scientific organizations and the governments of Britain, Sweden and Norway, is Dr. Ernest Roots, 26-year-old senior geologist of the group. Roots, a native of Salmon Arm, B.C., is a graduate of the University of British Columbia. His mother lives in Vancouver.

The adventure ship was flying the Union Jack when she pulled out into the stream. She was loaded to the plimsoll line with a strange variety of cargo, including two light aircraft.

TAKING PLANE

The aircraft, fitted with floats and skis, will be used to reconnoitre safe passage for the Norsel through the pack-ice barring the entrance to Queen Maud Land.

"If we get through, our first task will be to establish a base camp where we can stay through the winter and summer until 1952," Capt. John Giever, the tall blue-eyed Norwegian leader of the expedition, told the Canadian Press.

"If the Antarctic is found to be getting warmer it may prove the world's weather as a whole is improving, perhaps because the sun is more active."

Four members of the expedition are married. Roots said that "two years is a long time for a married man to be away from home. We single men are reconciled to living in an all-male community for that time. But I'll wager some of the bachelors will be married within a year of their return."

The Norsel's cargo includes enough beer, whisky and cigarettes to last three years, one member of the expedition said.

Torontonians Living Beyond Their Means

OTTAWA (CP)—There were 477,000 "economic families" in Toronto and they had an average income of $3,314.01 in the year ended Aug. 31, 1948, and average expenses of $3,405.65, the Bureau of Statistics has reported. The average family was left with an apparent deficit of $91.64.

Curlers Approve Bond-Selling Plan To Finance Rink

Plans of the Victoria Curling Club for construction of a $100,000 rink were completed at a meeting held in the City Hall Wednesday night, but the curlers still do not know where the building will be situated.

Approximately 150 members approved a plan announced earlier to float a bond issue to finance the rink.

The curlers do not expect a decision from City Council on the question of leasing property east of the Memorial Arena for the curling rink, until after the Dec. 8 elections.

The property is on the city's reserved list and the council is divided on whether it should be leased to the curlers at a nominal fee or retained for city purposes. The question has been referred to the Town Planning Commission for a recommendation.

ELECTION ISSUE

It may become a minor issue in the mayoralty election. Mayor Percy George has gone on record as favoring turning the property over to the curlers. Ald. Aubrey Kent, who is seeking the mayoralty office also, has stated the question should be studied further. He believes the property should be retained for a civic government administration building.

The curlers want the property so that the rink will be near the arena and both sheets of ice could be used for bonspiels. Also refrigeration could be bought from the arena.

The rink they plan would have eight sheets of ice and clubrooms.

TRUCK KILLS BOY

EDMONTON (BUP)—Six-year-old Ronald McCready of Edmonton was killed almost instantly late Wednesday afternoon when a truck passed over his body while he and two chums were playing with a dog.

City police were told by Jack Grand, driver for the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, that a change container with $20 in it was stolen from his bus while it was parked in the Coach Lines Depot Wednesday.

Veteran Loses Life In Port Alberni Waterfront Accident

PORT ALBERNI—Army veteran George Newlove lost his life Wednesday evening in a waterfront accident following his return from a duck-hunting expedition.

First search for the body was made by William Clayton, boat-house proprietor, who heard a splash shortly after Newlove had secured his boat to a float.

Clayton, fully-clothed, dived twice into the cold water in unsuccessful attempts to find Newlove. William Hunt, probing with a pike-pole, finally located the body.

Two-hour work by an inhalator squad to revive Newlove was unsuccessful.

The dead man was the operator of the army camp store in Glenwood and was popularly known as "Sergeant."

An inquest and post-mortem will be held.

Football-Minded M.P.'s To Play Hockey On Saturday

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur Smith (P.C.-Calgary West), solemnly informed Prime Minister St. Laurent today there must be some mistake behind the Prime Minister's request that the Commons sit Saturday to speed the drive for prorogation.

The sittings, he said, should be called for Varsity Stadium, Toronto, because that was where a majority of the members would be watching Calgary and Montreal in the Grey Cup final.

The Prime Minister — whose notice of a Saturday sitting was placed on this morning's order paper — equally solemnly replied that he hoped members' sense of public responsibility "will prevail over their desires" to see the game.

Mr. Smith promptly assured him that, with him, the final comes first.

The Speaker, Ross Macdonald, assured Mr. Smith his sympathies were all with him.

A second notice of intention to play hockey came from Frank Lennard (P.C.-Wentworth, Ont.), a former Canadian Rugby Football Union official, who said: "It's an insult to the sports fraternity" to have the House sit Saturday.

He said the Calgary-Ottawa final last year did more for east-west unity than "this House has been able to do in the last 10 years." The game this year would do the same.

The Speaker finally cut the discussion short by saying the motion for the Saturday sitting was not before the House yet anyway. It is due to come up officially tomorrow.

Deep Snowdrifts In Eastern Canada In Wake Of Storm

By BRITISH UNITED PRESS

Skies cleared over eastern Canada today, but deep snowdrifts, fallen trees and turbulent water on the Great Lakes and off the eastern seaboard told of the fury of a storm that had spent itself.

The gale, which had lost most of its force, was moving through eastern Quebec toward the Atlantic. However, another storm was whirling north from South Dakota.

The storm signals were down on the east coast, but stayed up on Lake Michigan. Snow and freezing rain were expected in that area and in southern Ontario later today.

Snowplows were out in full force on the Ontario highways, and some 50 Great Lakes freighters left port to continue their voyages after sheltering from the gale. Winds reached 50 miles per hour.

Forty ships were reported in port Wednesday night between Sault Ste. Marie and the Lakehead. Seven others took shelter in the Welland Canal, and three more docked at Kingston.

$2,133 In Clothing

Fish Catches Shrink

Hockey's Effect On Education Not A National Problem

TORONTO (CP)—A survey by the Canadian Education Association shows hockey's effect on the education of high school students does not reach proportions of a national problem, although there are "grounds for some dissatisfaction" in parts of Ontario and Manitoba, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The report of the survey recommended that it be referred to education departments of Manitoba and Ontario "for consultation with the appropriate athletic officials."

The survey was made by provincial departments of education in the principal cities across Canada. It was completed some time ago and a copy was sent to Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president.

Freeman Stewart, education association secretary, said in sending the survey report to Campbell:

"The C.E.A. is of the opinion there are grounds for some dissatisfaction concerning participation of high school students in professional athletics, particularly hockey, in several parts of Ontario and part of Manitoba, but it does not reach the proportions of a national problem."

QUOTES FIGURES

Campbell quoted figures from the Ontario survey to show only one out of every 5,682 Ontario students quit studies for a hockey career. He said some 200 secondary schools involving 125,000 students were involved in the survey.

"Of that number only 82 were affected in any way by junior A hockey, and of those who had transferred schools or changed residence to play hockey, all were continuing in school except 22."

In Winnipeg, Education Minister Smith said the inquiry that the association recommended into Manitoba hockey still is in its preliminary stages.

Total Of Jobless Doubled In Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Nearly twice as many persons are unemployed as a year ago, a Commons report showed today.

The return, tabulated for Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East), showed 83,525 persons received unemployment insurance in September and 105,064 in October. This compared with 44,761 and 55,534, respectively, for those two months in 1948.

Truman Must Choose Man To Head Atomic Commission

WASHINGTON (AP)—David E. Lilienthal's resignation as United States atomic chief left wide open today the question of who will succeed him in one of the most important jobs in the world.

Lilienthal will quit as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission Dec. 31. President Truman announced Wednesday that he was accepting the resignation "reluctantly and with the utmost regret."

The 50-year-old former lawyer became the first civilian head of the multi-billion dollar atomic program Oct. 28, 1946. His term normally would have expired next June 30, along with those of the other four commissioners.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters he had no idea whom Truman would name to the $17,500 a year post.

Lilienthal, a controversial figure throughout most of his 20 years of public life, said he wished to return to private life.

In an interview Wednesday night, he said: "There is only one time when a fellow can quit this kind of job—and that's when it is going well."

Opposition Demands Garson Resign Over Flour Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Angus MacInnis (C.C.F.-Vancouver East) said bluntly in the Commons today that Justice Minister Garson should resign because of the way he handled the report of an alleged price-fixing combine in the flour-milling industry.

He made the statement as members continued clause-by-clause study of a bill aimed at strengthening the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. MacInnis said he agreed with George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that the Justice Minister had placed himself in a position where he should not be given any more powers under the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. MacInnis said the minister had failed to table the combines report within the 15 days required by law. As a result there was a "suspicion" throughout the country that the minister and the government were not favorable to prosecutions under the Combines Investigation Act.

"The Justice Minister should resign and a new minister should be appointed to administer this act," said Mr. MacInnis.

QUESTIONS RIGHT

Mr. Drew said he wished to submit that Mr. Garson had not the right to prosecute any Canadian for breach of the law. The minister himself had broken the law and placed himself in "contempt" of Parliament.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he must reject the government statement that the flour-millers were granted wartime immunity from Canada's anti-price-fixing laws.

Mr. Drew said "the government has been in breach and contempt of Parliament for 10 months." He charged that Mr. Garson had failed to recognize the seriousness of his action in withholding publication of the report for 10 months.

He reiterated a demand that the minister give assurance that such "breach of the law" would not happen again. The government attitude appeared to be that it still thought it had had the right to break the law in regard to the flour-milling report. If that were so, there was no assurance that it would not be repeated.

Mr. Coldwell said there has been no documentary evidence to support the contention that the flour-milling companies were granted immunity from the combines legislation.

PROMISE MADE

Justice Minister Garson and Trade Minister Howe have said the flour-millers were told they wouldn't be prosecuted under the Combines Act for any wartime actions. Mr. Howe said this was because what appeared to be price-fixing among flour-millers in that period was the direct result of orders from the Prices Board.

F. A. McGregor, chief of Canada's anti-combines commission, wrote a report on the flour-milling industry in which he charged them with price-fixing over a 10-year period covering the war.

Under the Combines Investigation Act such reports must be made public by the government within 15 days of receipt.

Mr. McGregor resigned because the report was not made public until 10 months after he first sent it to Mr. Garson.

The government has said one reason for withholding the report was that it was at odds with the decision to grant wartime immunity to the flour-millers.

Mr. Drew said there were reasons why members should not pass the amending bill giving more powers to the Justice Minister as Attorney-General.

The bill does not name any Attorney-General, but it does give the present Attorney-General more power than he now possesses, said Mr. Drew. Members must question whether under the present Attorney-General the present act would be weakened rather than strengthened by the present amendment.

Mr. Garson's explanation gave no reason for the failure to publish the flour-milling report. Nowhere in Mr. Garson's speeches did he recognize the gravity of the offence he committed to Parliament and to the Canadian system of government, the speaker said.

Make Land Grant For Curling Rink

NANAIMO—City council has granted a 20-year lease to the Nanaimo Curling Club of a piece of Robbins Park, 200 feet on Fifth Avenue and 100 feet on Park Avenue.

Ald. Charles Wharton said the curlers planned to spend $16,000 on a building and $1,000 for provision of ice. He said the curlers also had agreed to lease the building for other public functions during the five months of the year in which it is not in use for curling.

Fire In Ancient Jerusalem Church

Above is the well in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

JERUSALEM (UP)—A fire today threatened one of Christendom's holiest shrines, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The fire broke out just before midnight, in the cupola of the ancient church built over Christ's tomb. It was still burning this afternoon, although it had been reported under control during the morning.

A thick pillar of smoke was still rising into the cloudless sky over Jerusalem at midday. Fire fighters from the Arab Legion and the Old City's administration believed they had confined the blaze to the wooden blocks of the dome. Melting lead dripping down handicapped the fire fighters.

Gaping holes showed through the dome, which seemed in imminent danger of collapse.

Canada Must Decide On Atomic Future, Says Board Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie said today he feels the time has come for the government and Parliament to decide on Canada's next major step forward in the atomic field.

The chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board told a Commons committee he has his own views but can only discuss them at a closed meeting.

He was answering questions from Howard Green (P.C.-Vancouver-Quadra). He told Mr. Green last week, it's up to the government and Parliament to decide whether Canada should go into the production of fissionable materials.

Her role now is in the field of research and development at the Chalk River plant, 125 miles from here.

Mr. Green asked today how the committee could help the atomic effort.

Dr. Mackenzie said the big problem for the country, one which has been exercising the scientists, is "where do we go from here?"

Charges By Albania

LONDON (AP)—Albania Wednesday accused Britain, the United States and Yugoslavia of "persistent" spying against Albania. The Soviet satellite country made its charges in a 4,000-word note to the Yugoslav government, broadcast by the Tirana radio.

NO NEED FOR CONFUSION

ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF A CITY

Hall system which would relieve aldermen of administrative duties and, at the same time, increase efficiency and inter-departmental co-operation, need little recapitulation here. They have been repeated in these columns frequently in recent years. Suffice it to say that many good potential candidates for civic office have been deterred from entering the lists because, though prepared to give time and thought to matters of policy, they did not feel themselves to be in a position to devote the hours given by many representatives to the tasks of carrying out the work. Add to that the fact that any move calculated to increase efficiency and co-operation is desirable, and the case is presented in a nutshell.

The above remarks are offered as background to current discussions on a subject to be decided by the voters early next month. They will be asked whether they want a paid, official administrative head at the City Hall or prefer to continue the present method of doing business. That is the fundamental question which will be presented. The issue has not been simplified by the plan to present two questions on the issue—but the essential point remains the same. As the result of this week's council decision, voters will be asked if they wish a director of civic administration and if they want a city manager.

Our understanding of the difference between the two posts may be phrased simply. A city or municipal manager would be appointed under the Municipal Manager Act. A director of administration would be appointed under the Municipal Act. In general terms their duties would be the same, as outlined in the Stevenson and Kellogg Report. A major point of difference is that the city manager office could not be abolished without a vote of the people—although a manager could be discharged for cause—while the position of administrator could be eliminated by a simple vote of the council.

This, in crude form, represents the points of difference between the system originally endorsed by the council and that brought before the voters by the petition sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and championed specifically by two aldermen.

It has been suggested that the public will be thoroughly confused by the submission of two questions on separate ballots. A condition of uncertainty could arise. There is, however, a very simple course that could be followed. If the voter desired neither a director of civic administration nor a city manager, he could place his mark against the "No" on both ballots. If he preferred a director of administration to a city manager, or vice versa, on the basis of minor differences in their status, he could mark his ballot in the affirmative for the office of his choice. Admittedly he could mark both ballots in the affirmative and thereby raise a technical issue of some importance.

A simple majority for the city manager would make that form mandatory, regardless of the figures for a director of civic administration. That eventually, however, is largely academic. The voter, after all, is expected to have some intelligence. It will be up to him to determine, first, whether he wants either system as opposed to that now in practice. Having reached that decision, it will then be necessary for the voter merely to mark his preference and vote "No" against the office he does not want. That should not be too onerous a mental task for anyone entitled to the franchise.

SCRAMBLED POLITICS

MANY POLITICAL WISEACRES ARE trying to set the date for the general election when Britain's Prime Minister Attlee will ask for new instructions from the people. Under traditional constitutional procedure no government may remain in office longer than five years unless by a majority vote of Parliament in time of emergency. In other words, within the next six months the electors of the United Kingdom will be going to the polls to endorse or reject the present administration at Westminster.

None of this is Canada's business. But Canadians and other peoples of the Commonwealth are intensely interested in how the people of the United Kingdom mark their ballots in the polling booths—regardless of why or when they exercise their priceless prerogative. Much of the speculation now being indulged in centres around Mr. Churchill's leadership of the Conservative Party and what influence the "ginger group" may have on strategy—not forgetting the "ginger group's" demand for a new leader.

Some commentators have openly suggested that Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, while religiously toying the party line, is not sufficiently strong, politically or personally, to chart a course for victory when the campaign gets under way. This, at a distance so far removed from the actual scene, puts us in the realm of speculation.

It may be permitted for the outsider to suggest, however, that much of the antiquated ammunition of the British Conservative Party has lost its political potency through the impress of the march of events. This is not to imply that Mr. Churchill, for example, who called the Tories everything he could think of more than four decades ago when he wanted to and did become a Liberal, would subscribe to the Beaverbrook policy of Empire Free Trade and tariffs against the rest of the world. The economic trend nowadays is toward the removal of all man-made obstacles to the exchange of goods between nation and nation.

Economists and men of sound business experience, ever since the beginning of the present century, have warned the peoples of the world that economic conflict is almost invariably followed by physical conflict. The First Great War was a tragic demonstration of the truism of this thesis. The tariff spree of the 'twenties, culminating in the crash of 1929, was obviously part of the curtain-raiser for the global conflict which ended four years ago last summer.

While all this may have no direct connection with any type of surmise as to what could happen when the voters of Great Britain go to the polls within the next six months, there is a connection—because the policies endorsed or rejected by the electors of Britain may help to determine the course of events during the next few years. In these events, and the form they are likely to take, Canada and Canadians are vitally concerned.

TO SAVE CHILDREN

AMONG THE NUMEROUS BIG JOBS being done by the United Nations, without the headline publicity given to the political arms of the great global organization, is the provision of food, clothing and medical care to millions of children in needy countries. Supported by the International Children's Emergency Fund, the distribution of supplies and aid is "on the basis of need, without discrimination because of race, creed, nationality or political belief," and many infants, children, expectant mothers and nursing mothers owe their welfare, if not their very lives, to the contributions of sympathetic nations and individuals. Essentially, the UNICEF is an international co-operative, dedicated to the benefit of children. The receiving nations are encouraged to help to the best of their ability, providing available stable foods, for instance, to supplement essential nourishment provided by the organization.

But whether the contributions come from government sources or from the personal wallets of individuals, they are equally efficacious in providing assistance where it is vitally necessary. As a measure of the value of each donated dollar, the UNICEF points out that with it may be bought powdered milk to give 10 children a glass a day for a week. On the other hand, the dollar may be used to furnish enough raw cotton to make 15 diapers, enough leather to make a pair of shoes, enough raw wool for a child's coat, a daily dose of cod liver oil for almost 300 children, or the vaccination of eight children against tuberculosis.

These examples show the basic nature of the aid given—no frills, no luxuries, no benefits not directly concerned with the preservation of life itself. In such circumstances personal contribution is a duty rather than a choice. In Victoria the headquarters for the UNICEF appeal is located at Prince Robert House. Need more be said?

TOO HOT TO HOLD?

THE FREEDOM OF AMERICAN CONSUL-GENERAL ANGUS WARD by Chinese Communists in Mukden—he had been held in jail for a month in company with four assistants on a charge of beating a Chinese—came very quickly after United States action in seeking the support of 30 countries in protest. While direct evidence is lacking that the Communists tried him, delivered a verdict and freed him on suspended sentence as a result of the American effort to enlist worldwide disapproval, there were certain obvious disadvantages to be suffered if the case—believed trumped up—was prolonged.

British and Canadian sentiment in favor of recognizing the Communist regime of Gen. Mao Tse-tung had cooled appreciably as a result of the Mukden affair. It had been forgotten by the general public that the Consul-General and his staff had been under house arrest in that city for the past year, ever since the Communist forces took over the area. For the United States, the imprisonment and trial of their diplomatic representative brought things to a head. Apparently the Communist objective was to cause the Occidentals to lose face—a potent weapon in the Orient. Whether or not that was achieved in Mukden circles is not yet clear, but it is evident that any advantage gained by Mao and his local officials has been bought at a high price on the international market. It is not the first time a "Mukden incident" has had unexpectedly far-flung repercussions for the perpetrators.

SMOKE WITHOUT FLAME

IN THE EARLY STAGES OF TUESDAY night's professional hockey game, smoke suddenly billowed out into the arena. The occurrence created interest among the spectators and protest from some as the haze thickened. But apart from a little shuffling and craning of necks, it caused little movement among the fans.

Later inquiries revealed that the incident was caused by a blow-back in the furnace. At no time was there any danger. But there was enough smoke to have caused a panic had the Memorial Arena been a wooden structure. The general sense of security among the patrons sprang from a realization that the structure is fireproof. This is one of the benefits for which Victoria paid in the high cost of construction—a benefit well worth the price.

Welfare State In U.S.

By DOUGLAS LARSEN from Washington

A UNITED STATES congressional report just completed attempts to give an objective, non-political analysis of just how much of a "welfare state" America does have.

It's a study of what is being done by government directly to aid the unemployed and low-income families. The authors, members of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report, avoid any comment on what is good or bad about the various programs. But certain evaluations are obvious.

MOST APPARENT is the modest cost of United States' direct "welfare" efforts in comparison to the staggering expenditures on such things as foreign aid and national defence. For instance, last year the total bill for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind and general assistance was $1,700,000,000. That includes costs to federal, state and local governments. Per U.S. inhabitant the cost was $11.86. That's close to less than one-tenth of what was spent for military purposes.

Under a new public low-rent housing program annual contributions of about $238,000,000 have been authorized for the whole country. That's just about the same sum appropriated for military housing.

THERE ARE ABOUT 17,200,000 workers who are not covered by any kind of old-age or unemployment insurance. They include agricultural workers, domestic help and others.

There are 5,200,000 persons who work for federal, state and local governmental agencies. Only a tiny fraction are covered by any kind of unemployment insurance.

The report states:

"Inability to engage in gainful work because of illness or injury ranks high among the economic hazards of workers in the U.S. But only the states of Rhode Island, California and New Jersey now administer temporary disability programs providing cash benefits in case of nonoccupational disability."

THOSE EXAMPLES show how little coordination there has been in the long-time development of overall welfare programs. The money is not going to satisfy greatest needs first. Nevertheless, the report furnishes an imposing list of activities that are being carried on in this field.

By August of this year there were over 2,600,000 persons getting old-age assistance and 1,400,000 dependent children receiving help. The federal government does not give direct cash help to needy persons except in those two categories, and in the case of a few persons who come under a "general assistance" program.

UNDER THE OFFICE of Vocational Rehabilitation, which works with the state agencies, 58,000 handicapped persons a year get rehabilitation training which enables them to become self-supporting. There are federal grants to the state totaling $22,000,000 a year for health and welfare services for mothers and children and crippled children. And about one-quarter of all U.S. kids in public schools benefit from the national school-lunch program administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The report says:

"Although most of the veterans' programs are designed for the benefit of all veterans—and their dependents, others are specifically intended to meet the needs of the low-income veterans and their surviving dependents. Such programs show a great increase in participation during periods of general unemployment."

THE AUTHORS admit that several other important federal programs, which they don't consider in detail, contribute indirectly to helping low-income families. They say:

"Perhaps the most important of these, the agricultural price-support program, although not specifically direct to that end, has reduced sharply the number of low-income farm families. Neither does this report cover such broad general programs as education or public health, which provide services that are of great significance to low-income families but which are also available to the community as a whole."

It is in this latter area where the "welfare state" becomes a strictly political issue.

A Tough Opponent

Four Years After The Bomb

By FRANCIS BURNS, Boston Globe

CATARACTS THAT can lead to blindness are a delayed result of atomic bombing, an American eye-research team learned in a two-month examination of victims in Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

DELAYED EFFECT

It is the first delayed effect of the atomic bomb on the human body that has turned up in the four years since Aug. 6, 1945, when the first atomic bomb used in warfare was dropped on a city.

Dr. David G. Cogan, director of the Harvard Howe laboratory in the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, was sent by the National Research Council to study the eyes of survivors in the bombed areas. With him were Dr. Forrest Martin of Harvard and the Infirmary, and Dr. Samuel Kimura of the University of California.

Ten of the 237 persons they saw, who were within half a mile of the bomb centre—and lived—have developed radiation cataracts, Dr. Cogan and his associates found. Altogether 2,000 persons exposed to the bomb were examined.

The finding of cataracts was wholly unexpected, Dr. Cogan says. Ages at the time of the bombing, of the cataract victims ranged from 13 to the late 40's.

All of the 10 cataract victims had lost their hair, following the bombing. But so had 290 more of the people examined. The Boston specialist says that others are likely to develop delayed cataracts.

"We ran into lots of congenital cataract cases," Dr. Cogan said. "These 10 were unmistakably the delayed result of ionizing radiation."

"We didn't expect to find any. The cataract cases in the United States have been shown to be the result of looking into the machine in operation. We thought that any Japanese who were near enough to be exposed to so much radiation as to develop cataracts would have been killed by the bomb."

PARTIALLY SHIELDED

"Those who are developing cataracts must have been partially shielded by metal, so that their whole bodies were not radiated. Otherwise they would have died from the amount."

"Some were in the Japanese wooden houses with their tiled roofs which could have shielded them a little. Three were in a streetcar, whose steel walls protected them in part."

"We found no glaucoma that could be attributed to the bomb."

"We found several injuries of the retina from the blast effect and one woman had a burn on her retina like that occasionally seen following an eclipse of the sun here when people look at the shadowed sun with the naked eye."

"This woman had been looking at the sky as the bomb exploded. She said the explosion looked to her like 'a vivid glare like a magnesium photo bulb.'"

FIRST IMPRESSION

All the victims explained that they thought a bomb had exploded right in front of where ever they were.

"In general, they thought it was one of the inequities of total war," reports Dr. Cogan. "More of us feel that it was not right, apparently, than the Japanese."

A Vast New Western Industry

From the Royal Bank of Canada Letter

THE first Alberta oil boom started half a century ago when Kootenai Brown and Lafayette French saw Indians skimming the brown sticky liquid off a slough near Pincher Creek. They traded a pack-horse for the slough, raised capital in Calgary (starting that city as the oil capital of Canada), and in 1901 there was a forest of tents and a crowd of drillers. No oil was found. It was many years before Gulf Oil was successful in the same district, after drilling 12,000 feet.

FIRST WELL

In May, 1914, the first well came in at Turner Valley. Up to this spring the valley had yielded nearly 100 million barrels of oil and about 1,500 billion cubic feet of natural gas. It is estimated that it still has in reserve 25 million barrels of oil and 400 billion cubic feet of gas, tapped by 278 producing wells.

Fields outside Turner Valley have grown in importance. The Conrad and Taber fields were among major producers in 1946. Lloydminster became the centre of interest late that year. This field, lying astride the Saskatchewan-Alberta border, has reserves variously estimated from 50 to 300 million barrels.

The oil, thick as molasses in its natural state, makes good railway or ship fuel. There is thought to be potential oil and gas territory in Saskatchewan stretching from the United States border for 365 miles north.

In 1946, surveyors, working by seismograph, got encouraging reflections at Leduc. In November, a speculative well was started, and on February 13, 1947, Imperial Oil Company brought in Leduc "Discovery" with a flush flow of 1,000 barrels a day. By June, with four wells in production, Leduc was accepted as an oilfield.

LARGEST PRODUCER

Within 18 months, Canada became the largest oil producer in the British Empire, ousting Trinidad from leading position. At mid-1949 there were nearly 250 producing wells in the field, and 30 more were being drilled.

This discovery opened up a whole new area for intensive search. It revealed the existence of the coral reef type of formation which is typical of the rich West Texas area. Redwater, the second major field, was uncovered by Imperial in September, 1948. Thickness of the storage limestone in this area is 144 feet as compared with 35 feet in the Leduc area. Wood-bend field yields oil from two layers, and just west of Wood-bend is the "Golden Spike," with more than 500 feet of porous limestone.

South of all these there has now been brought to attention a new broad stretch of territory, heralded by the Canadian Gulf Oil Company strike at Stettler. The potential is indicated as 3,000 barrels daily of light crude oil from about 100 feet of pay zone.

By the beginning of this year these efforts had established light crude oil reserves in Alberta conservatively estimated at 800 million barrels. The production capacity indicated now is 100,000 barrels a day, which is about 40,000 barrels a day more than the demand in the Prairie provinces.

GREAT PROSPECTS

It is not possible at this time to estimate how much Canada benefits in dollars and cents through the new oil discoveries, nor even in how many ways, benefits. It is safe to say, however, that these discoveries rank with the most significant developments that have ever taken place in this country.

Dr. Theo A. Link told the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers in Toronto early this year: "I believe that during the next decade the exploration for and discovery of new oil and gas pools in Western Canada will be such that the wildest of day-dreamers will seem amateurs."

GLOBAL SURVEY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press News Analyst

The Russian government newspaper Izvestia makes a front-page splash with the surprising thesis that Socialism (Communism) and Capitalism can live side by side in peace—and it attributes the view to Lenin and Stalin.

The idea of compatibility between the two isms also has been put forward recently by other publications, including the Soviet magazine New Times. This is doubly interesting since both Lenin and Stalin have discounted the idea of co-operation between Communism and Capitalism. For example, Lenin in 1920 said:

"As long as Capitalism and Socialism exist, we cannot live in peace, in the end one or the other will triumph."

The world revolution for the spread of Communism also is in itself a direct contradiction of this theory of peace. So is the cold war.

QUALIFY THESIS

Where then does this leave us? Must we discard the idea that peace between Communism and Capitalism is utterly impossible?

I think not, but we shall have to qualify our thesis.

Communism and Capitalism obviously cannot live in peace within the confines of any one country. They are oil and water and cannot mix.

However, there is widespread belief among students of the subject that a Communist state and a Capitalist state could live side by side in peace—provided each minded its own business and didn't try to force its ism down the throat of the other.

If Moscow really believes what it is preaching about peace, why not let her withdraw her fifth columns and call off the cold war. It's a fair bet she would get co-operation from the democracies.

PEANUT DEBACLE

Windsor Star

The British plan to mass produce peanuts in Africa, to increase the supply of scarce vegetable oils, has fallen short of success in the three years since it was launched.

An odor of failure hangs heavily over this venture, and naturally most of the blame is being pinned on the Attlee government. It's true that private industry, which launched the development, was no more successful than the Crown company which took it over after the first year. But that's small comfort to the government, which all along has been saying its formula is the sure answer to private enterprise's shortcomings.

CROSSMAN NONSENSE

Montreal Star

Mr. Richard Crossman, ex-Oxford don and British Labor M.P. is the gentleman who last month so graciously described Britain's purchases of cheap wheat from Canada—cheaper than it could have been got anywhere else—by saying, "we are ruining ourselves to save the Canadian farmers from bankruptcy." He has now found another generous way of describing this business. "It is impossible," he remarked, "for Britain to continue to carry the Canadian dollar deficit."

Mr. Crossman, unless he wants his fellow countrymen to assume the status of permanent, professional beggars, had better find more courteous ways of discussing Canadian-British trade relations.

COMMON DENOMINATOR

New York Times

The old reduction ad absurdum—"what's the price of coffee in Brazil?"—like many old saws these days, has temporarily lost its meaning. Many a housewife is scanning the spot and futures quotations of coffee, wondering where the current price rises will stop.

Coffee can be wonderful. It can be horrible. Yet, stuff that you'd taste and throw out in Manhattan, you would gulp greedily over a sun-up campfire in the Adirondacks. It is a true love, mountain high, valley low. Over second and third cups flow matters of high finance, high state, common gossip and low comedy. It is a social binder, a warmer of tongues, a soberer of minds, a stimulant of wit, a foiler of sleep if you want it so. From roadside mugs to the classic demi-tasse, it is the perfect democrat. It hurts one to see such an old and truly cultivated friend come off the perch of art and contend with economics like the rest of us.

Big Express Parcel

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simpson of Blenkinsop Road, and their new dapple-grey mare at the C.P.R. docks.

A whinnying, four-legged, 1,200-pound express parcel arrived in Victoria Wednesday afternoon from Galt, Ont.

The new arrival was a dapple-grey mare, bought by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simpson of Blenkinsop Road, from the West Point Farms at Galt, Ontario, for show ring jumping and riding here.

The mare was actually sent as a Canadian Pacific Railway express parcel order to shorten its journey across the country. It cost Mr. Simpson a total of $300 to ship the horse under that arrangement.

It left Galt Saturday afternoon at 1.35 and arrived in Victoria aboard the afternoon boat from Vancouver only five minutes over four days.

Loder Remarries

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor John Loder and Mrs. Evelyn Carolan Auffmordt, formerly of Burlingame, Calif., were married Wednesday. Loder, 48, former husband of actress Hedy Lamarr and his 28-year-old bride said they were not disclosing their honeymoon plans. They will live in New York.

The unusual express shipment included making a special box for the mare which rode in the railway-express car instead of the regular railway cars provided for livestock.

As it was put aboard, the former owner handed to the express car man a typed list with instructions on how, when and what to feed the mare during its travels.

CBC Control Of Canada's Television Urged By Artists

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Group of Painters recommended today to the Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences that control of television in Canada be excluded from private or commercial interests.

The submission of the artists' organization, a society of 50 painters which grew out of Canada's famed "Group of Seven," was presented by Arthur Lismer on the second day of the commission's four-day Montreal hearing.

With respect to the CBC and the National Film Board, the group's brief said it was in agreement with the present policies and proposals for the expansion of those two bodies. It recommended "no interference with their present policy, but rather greater encouragement and assistance to both."

It also recommended that "television in Canada be placed under control of the CBC with advice, where necessary, from the National Gallery of Canada and the National Film Board, and that any control of television be excluded from private or commercial interests."

The artists recommended an immediate start on the long-proposed National Gallery building and establishment of a national arts board under the Secretary of State.

Duties of the arts board should be "to publicize and encourage the artistic achievements of Canada by placing of representative works of art in Canadian embassies abroad and in

Tolerance Toward Church Seen As Instrumentality Of Soviet Foreign Policy

Installment No. 17

Great issues of religious freedom still are unresolved in the Soviet Union, but seen at first hand the staying power of the Russian "believer," after 30 years of anti-religious propaganda and persecution, is impressive proof that the state as of this date still has not succeeded in establishing absolute moral dominion over the masses of people outside the Communist Party.

"Religion is the opium of the people," wrote Lenin. "Religion is a kind of spiritual vodka in which the slaves of capital drown their human shape and their claims to any decent human life."

The new revolutionary state accepted his judgment on religion as on other questions, and, for a score of years, a militant League of the Godless assumed the leadership in a campaign to suppress and wipe out the church—partly by propaganda, persecution of the clergy and discrimination against church members and partly by dynamiting many of its finest cathedrals, converting others into museums for anti-religious displays and still others into garages and storehouses, while training schools for the clergy were closed. Until the war, religion was to some extent being driven underground—and increasingly being practised clandestinely; signs of anti-religious activity were everywhere visible.

My first Easter in the Soviet capital convinced me, in dramatic fashion, that the crusade against religion had been one of Lenin's less successful efforts. The Easter celebration is the greatest of all religious festivals of the Russian Orthodox Church and, a few weeks before the date, I had been formally invited, together with other members of the diplomatic corps, by the Metropolitan of Moscow, second only to the Patriarch as the ranking ecclesiastical authority in the Soviet Union, to attend the midnight services at the great and beautiful Moscow Cathedral. We were warned to come an hour early, in order to avoid the last-minute crowd and in order to meet the Metropolitan and the officiating clergy before the services began.

The night was a series of surprises. The first took place early in the evening, during a reception at one of the other embassies, when, in conversation with a high-ranking Soviet official, I remarked that I was going later to attend the midnight service at the Cathedral and that I looked forward with pleasure to the opportunity to hear the magnificent choral singing.

"How I wish I could go!" he responded spontaneously. Realizing quickly that he had said, he then glanced rather furtively about to see if any of his Soviet colleagues were within hearing distance.

Since he was a confirmed Communist, I must assume that his interest primarily was in the spectacle and in the singing, both so dear to Russian hearts, but the spontaneity and sincerity of his desire to attend surprised me more than a little.

THOUSANDS AND THOUSANDS

Later, as our car approached the Cathedral, we were again astonished. The great square was a solid mass of people—thousands and thousands of them. In their effort to get as near as possible to the Cathedral, entry into the building itself being by this time out of the question, they were packed together as tight as human beings can get and still be able to breathe.

The best efforts of the police had been ineffective in maintaining an open path, and it took about 25 soldiers and militiamen, in a wedge formation, to force a way for us to the Cathedral doors. The crowd was quiet and orderly, but the feeling of its great mass pressing against the thin line of our escort was almost frightening, and indeed Mrs. Smith and Miss Ruth Briggs, my secretary, were twice almost carried off their feet.

The interior of the vast building was a solid mass of humanity, packed even closer, if possible, than the crowd outside. The congregation seemed to represent every stratum of Soviet society, with the important exceptions of the political and the military. Men and women, divided about equally, had been in the church since early afternoon in order to hold their places. The heat of their packed bodies and the warm moisture of their breath rising in the cold air of the unheated building were condensed on the high vaulted ceiling, and tiny drops of water dripped from the arches.

Two large choirs of mixed male and female voices sang without organ or other accompaniment the full-volume, magnificent chants of the Orthodox Church as they can be rendered only by Russians.

UNEQUALLED SPLENDOR

The music, the grandeur of the ancient Cathedral, the splendid and colorful vestments of the officiating priests and deacons, and the solemn reverence of the congregation combined to create an atmosphere of Byzantine splendor that could hardly be equalled anywhere else in the world.

When the lighted tapers, symbolic of the Resurrection, were passed out to the congregation, the body of the church became a sea of tiny lights, one in the hands of each man, woman and child. Impressive though the beauty was, I could not help thinking what would happen if some one, fainting, should drop his candle, and ignite the draperies or the pine boughs with which the Cathedral was decorated. I was somewhat relieved when the solemn moment arrived when the Metropolitan, having made his symbolic search for the body of the crucified Christ, discovered that the Saviour had risen, announced the glad tidings as the candles were extinguished, and pronounced his blessing upon the congregation and the assembled multitude outside in the square, who were still packed as tightly together when we left as they had been when we arrived.

To understand fully its significance, you must remember that that startling demonstration of the depth of religious feeling that still, in spite of Communist opposition, animates the masses of Russia, took place in Moscow, almost under the shadow of the Kremlin walls. For 30 years, means of influencing and directing public sentiment has been monopolized by the Communist party. Press, radio, the privilege of public meetings, facilities for public announcement and public transportation, the complete control of education—all have been longed exclusively to the party and to the state. The church was made to work within the confines of the few run-down edifices left to it when the anti-religious crusade began to diminish, and even within these narrow limits it labored under every disadvantage that the state could enforce. It has not been able to announce its services publicly. It has not been able to transport its congregations or to bring the services to scattered congregations. It has been unable to influence the youth of the country, and it has not been permitted to reply to the violent attacks by the party and the state against its moral authority. It has had to suffer in silence the conversion of hundreds of churches into anti-religious museums.

SPREAD BY WORD OF MOUTH

Nevertheless, when it becomes known by word of mouth that an important religious event is to take place, people crowd the churches and even whole city districts surround them in an atmosphere of intense religious devotion. The Communist party can call out its members and all other Soviet citizens for mass demonstrations at any time, in any number. They will appear without question, will carry whatever banners are put in their hands, and will comply with any orders that are given them. They even will enjoy the event with characteristic Russian enthusiasm for pageantry in any form.

But what I saw in the Cathedral square went far deeper than the usual Moscow demonstration. The party, I felt certain, could not produce among the Soviet masses even a shadow of the genuine emotion that was stamped on the faces of the thousands of worshippers that Easter night in Moscow.

It was a convincing proof of the fact that while the Communist party has been successful in retaining that which is Caesar's, its direct efforts to capture also that which is God's has been quietly but decisively rejected by the masses of the older Russian people.

This may have little visible practical significance at the present time, but it is an indication that certain sources of emotional enthusiasm have been lost to state control, and, therefore, it is indicative of a possible danger with which the state must reckon. As long as the church is kept within harmless channels and as long as no outside force is permitted to touch these particular springs of human nature and human action, there is little danger. But if they ever were to be grasped and activated by outside influence, the threat to the regime might be incalculable.

SIGNS OF EASING

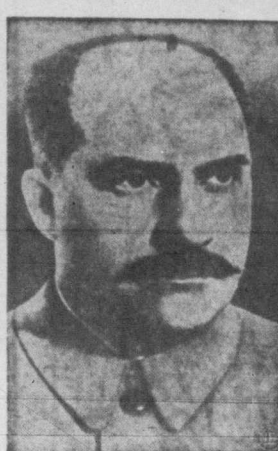

Signs of an easing attitude toward the Eastern Orthodox and Armenian Churches began to appear in 1941, after the Nazi invasion of the Soviet Union, when it became vital for the government to utilize every possible stimulus to intensify the loyalty of the embattled population and, at the same time, increase goodwill among peoples of the West toward the Soviet Union. In 1942, the Orthodox Patriarch of Moscow was given governmental permission and co-operation for the publication of a book, "The Truth About Religion," that pledged loyalty to the Soviet cause and denied persecution of the church faithful. In October, 1943, a council for Russian Orthodox affairs was established to supervise church affairs, and the Patriarchate was given greatly increased freedom of activity. In January, 1945, amid a blaze of publicity and propaganda by Soviet agencies, the Metropolitan Alexius of Leningrad was elevated to the Patriarchate. Since that time, there has been a gradual, but strictly controlled, religious revival in the Soviet Union.

But, though the reasons why the action was taken were obvious to outsiders, the shift in emphasis of the party line from one of severe reprisals against the church to a more moderate attitude of religious tolerance for non-party members came as something of a surprise to the party and required explanation despite the Soviet constitutional guarantee of religious freedom, which has been more honored in the breach than in the observance since its promulgation in 1936. Victor Kravchenko, a former official of the Soviet purchasing mission in the United States who refused to return to Russia during the war, tells the story of one such explanation in his book, "I Chose Freedom." An official of the Council of People's Commissars, Misonov, justified the change in policy with this statement:

"Our new religious policy will be valuable in meeting anti-Soviet propaganda of the Roman Catholics, Lutherans and other religious groups. . . . We have the chance to draw the Orthodox Church in other countries closer to Russia and make Moscow the 'Third Rome.' . . . 'Don't worry about the new generation being spied by religious superstition. . . . It's clear to everyone that a young man with religious inclinations can't possibly make a career. The Komsomols, you may be sure, will be a stronger force than the priests.'"

CAMPAIGN AGAINST ZIONISM

It is clear now, of course, that whatever may have been the hopes of churchgoers at the news from Moscow during the war, the Soviet regime has given little more than lip service to its new pledge in so far as real freedom of religion is concerned. The state has evidenced more liberality toward the Russian Orthodox Church, which has proven to be as staunch in its support of the present Moscow rulers as of the czarist regime, than it has toward the other religious denominations like the Christians and the Jews that look elsewhere than to the Kremlin for leadership. New policy and postwar developments seem to have stirred some of the anti-Semitism always latent in the Soviet Union. There is not, of course, any direct persecution or officially acknowledged discrimination, but there is an active propaganda campaign against Zionism and "cosmopolitanism," which causes uneasiness to the majority of Soviet Jews, with the exception of a few highly-placed individuals, such as Kaganovitch, a member of the Politburo, and Ilya Ehrenburg, the skilled Soviet writer and propagandist.

And, despite all announcements to the contrary, the opportunity for religion to develop in the Soviet Union is handicapped severely by the lack of facilities.

Moscow, as a result of population gains during and since the war, is now estimated to be a city of between 4,000,000 and 7,000,000 persons, spread over 27.5 square miles. For this great number of people there were, as of June, 1948, about 30 churches operating, an average of one church for every 130,000 persons if one accepts the lowest population estimates. These included 25 Russian Orthodox churches, one Old Believers' cathedral, one Jewish synagogue (for an estimated 300,000 Jews in Moscow), one Evangelical Lutheran-Baptist church (the result of a recent merger) and a single Roman Catholic chapel.

By comparison, New York City, with a population of about 8,000,000, has at present a total of 2,052 Protestant and Roman Catholic churches alone—or an average of one church for every 4,000 persons—not counting the places of worship maintained by other religions.

Since the granting of true religious freedom demonstrably was not the cause of the Kremlin's shift in policy toward religion in the war years, it is worthwhile evaluating this move by the standards set up by Mr. Misonov:

FOREIGN ASPECT

It would be valuable for disarming the criticism and opposition of foreign religious bodies: in this respect, the new policy already has been a successful one. It promises to be even more so as the Russian Church emerges from its isolation and re-establishes its relations with world religious organizations. In this connection, a recent Geneva dispatch reports: "Signs of a rapprochement between the Russian Orthodox Church under the Moscow Patriarch and the Protestant and other orthodox churches of the world, through the World Council of Churches, continue to increase. . . . Religious News Service is able to state authoritatively that a basis for co-operation of the Russian Church with the World Council is being sought."

It would attract support for the Soviet All-Union Policy: Religious penetration was one of the most effective elements of the pan-Slavism of czarist Russia. After the Soviet revolution, however, religious opposition was second only to fear of Communism in creating and maintaining the long estrangement between the Eastern European and Russian Slavs. The removal of that opposition and the restoration of fraternal ecclesiastical relations would be a factor of primary importance in solidifying Soviet control and influence in Eastern and Central Europe and the Middle East. The Moscow Patriarch already has undertaken a vigorous offensive, and can report success in gaining control or hegemony over the Slavic Orthodox churches in the Baltic states, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Bulgaria, and over some Russian emigre churches in France, Germany, Manchuria, Korea and Japan. Avoiding the historic complexities of international ecclesiastical politics—more devious even than secular politics—and at the risk of oversimplification, it still is apparent that Moscow's only serious competition comes from the Ecumenical Patriarch at Istanbul. But the Istanbul Patriarchate gradually has lost all temporal support and protection except that of weak and bankrupt Greece, and cannot continue to offer serious resistance if it is not strengthened. Even the historic and holy Orthodox Patriarchates of Jerusalem, Antioch and Alexandria need support and might be unable to withstand the persuasions of the Russian Church. If they were to fall, Lenin would surely turn in his tomb—for Stalin would have succeeded the Czar as the "protector" of the Christians of the East, and Moscow could indeed claim to have achieved its ancient ambition to become a "Third Rome."

The new tolerance for the Orthodox Church can be seen, therefore, as severely limited and primarily designed to serve as an instrumentality of an expansive Soviet foreign policy. I would not have the temerity to estimate the extent, if any, that the Kremlin may be able to impose its will upon the Moscow Patriarch. But I noted with grave misgivings a three-page article by Archbishop Alexander Smirnov, under the title "Demons of the New Aggressor Threatening the People's Peace," published in December, 1947, in the Journal of the Moscow Patriarchate. This article, dedicated to Christmas, was a violent attack upon the United States and "the Anglo-Saxon warmongers" in terms identical to those employed by Pravda and the other standard Communist party organs. So far as I know, this was the first time that the Russian Church officially had printed an article wholly devoted to the Soviet Union's anti-Western foreign policy. Others appeared subsequently.

FEAR DOMESTIC REVIVAL

In announcing tolerance toward religion the Soviet government promptly took other actions lest the domestic revival attain too much momentum. Satisfied apparently that anti-religious propaganda and persecution could not work among the older people, it directed the new campaign particularly to the young, especially among the Komsomols, to whom Stalin was quoted in 1947 as expounding the Leninist-Stalinist policy on religion in the following words:

"The party cannot be neutral regarding religion and it conducts anti-religious propaganda against all religious prejudices because it stands for science, and religious prejudices are opposed to science since any religion is contrary to science. . . . There are cases in which some

Filibuster On Pipe-Line Bills In Commons Soon Month Old

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament's pint-sized filibuster on pipe-line legislation will be one month old in a few days, but there's no sign of it petering out.

In fact, with the present session due to finish in a couple of weeks, the possibility remains that the opposition will succeed in preventing passage this year of two controversial bills, both introduced by private members.

The filibuster started Oct. 28 when a bill was introduced asking incorporation of a company known as Prairie Transmission Lines.

A few days later a similar bill, this one to incorporate the Alberta Natural Gas Company, was placed before the Commons.

Both companies want incorporation so they can build pipe lines to carry natural gas from Alberta.

CANADA'S NEEDS

The reason for the filibuster is that some opposition members are afraid the two companies will build lines which will transport the natural gas into the United States without first filling Canadian needs.

They appear determined to talk the bills to death unless the proposed routes of the lines are written into them. The members believe that would give Parliament control over export of the natural gas from Canada.

Normally, filibustering on private bills such as these is not difficult. Only two hours a week are devoted to private legislation. (It's called private legislation because it is sponsored by private members and not the government.)

The government apparently got tired of seeing the bills continually "talked out" and this week, despite persistent opposition, suspended the rules so that instead of devoting one hour on Tuesday night the House would take three hours if necessary.

The members talked right through the three hours and still no decision was reached.

The position of the Liberals is that the question of controlling export of gas should be left to the Board of Transport Commissioners, the Alberta government and Trade Minister Howe. All have the authority to grant or reject pipeline licenses. This doesn't satisfy the Progressive Conservatives, the C.C.F. and even several Liberals.

The filibuster description was attached to the debate last week by Mr. Howe when he threatened to suspend the House rules if the opposing members didn't stop what he described as their obstructionist tactics.

Opposing members objected to the use of the word "obstructionist." However, there is no question any longer that they are trying to delay the legislation.

Freighter To Make Port Unaided After Engine-Room Fire

The Panamanian freighter Eagle waved off assistance late Wednesday with her master's assurance she could complete her trip from Korea to Longview, Wash.

A message from the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Winona said both the cutter and the U.S. Army transport Gen. H. B. Freeman had been released to proceed to their ports. The Winona headed back to Port Angeles, Wash.; the Freeman resumed her trip to Seattle.

The 10-100-ton freighter sent out an S.O.S. about 8 Tuesday evening, declaring there was a fire in her engine room. Her position was given as 360 miles southwest of Cape Flattery, northwestern-most tip of the State of Washington. The Freeman, 60 miles away came alongside in four hours.

The Coast Guard said Wednesday night that messages indicated there was no apparent fire damage to the Eagle's machinery.

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)—Arthritis sufferers who hoped a newly-developed drug called cortisone would be readily available to ease their pain found their hopes partially dashed Wednesday. The damper came from Dr.

Federal Aid For Maritimes Coal Mines

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe gave notice to the Commons today that the government is prepared to loan up to a total of $10,000,000 to Maritime provinces coal producers to assist production.

He placed on the order paper a notice that he is ready to bring in legislation which would help modernize production methods. The maximum amount that could be loaned to any one producer would be $7,500,000.

The legislation would provide for the conditions of the loans and the terms of repayment.

Says 5% Public Questionable Risk On Credit Terms

Five per cent of the buying public are questionable credit risks, Arthur Bullied of Toronto, field representative of the National Credit Bureaus and Associated Credit Granters' Associations in Canada, told a meeting of Victoria Women's Breakfast Club Wednesday in Strathcona Hotel private dining-room.

He told his audience that credit was the product of progress and the consumer needed to be educated to the responsibilities of becoming a debtor.

"Eighty-five per cent of the buying public are good credit risks, 10 per cent over-estimate their ability to pay, and 5 per cent are questionable risks," he said. "Yesterday's luxuries are tomorrow's necessities and a good credit reputation is an individual's most valuable asset."

Mr. Bullied commented on the advertising done by merchants, particularly in the United States, where, he said, terms are being sold instead of merchandise. He told the club that energy and enterprise are the roots of success and the large businesses of today were the small businesses of a few years ago.

"They were built on sound business policies, well controlled," he said.

Mr. Bullied felt that women should do more selling, stating as one example that a woman knew more about a washing machine than a man did.

He said he considered Women's Breakfast Clubs an important asset to the credit world and felt they should be given more recognition by the Credit Granters' Associations. He expressed amazement that the Victoria girls studied their educational courses at seven o'clock breakfast.

G. A. A. Hebdon thanked the speaker, who was heard also by employers of some of the members. Mrs. Pat Green, president, was in the chair.

Sightless Citizens At Government House

The society is a voluntary organization, constituted in its present form since 1920 and acting in migration matters as the woman's branch of the Commonwealth Relations office.

Miss Cumber spent the week-end in Victoria as guest of Miss M. Pearce, head mistress of St. Margaret's School, and left again yesterday for eastern Canada and England.

"My visit to Canada has been of great benefit," Miss Cumber says. "I have gained first-hand information that I will be able to impart to those interested, and I have also been able to establish in many cities a liaison with our society that will be of two-fold benefit."

Explaining that the society she represents does not go in for mass immigration, Miss Cumber added, "we are interested in the individual girl or woman who is keen to start a complete new life, or through a spirit of adventure wishes to see and work in another part of the world."

The society last year placed 527 women in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada.

"Our greatest contact so far has been in the private schools of these countries," this interesting visitor said, "and we have placed many girls and women in this environment."

At present the society is very interested in starting members of the Women's Land Army of Great Britain on farms in Canada and in other countries.

"In Ontario I found an interest in this type of immigrant, one man is taking six of these farm girls. He will use them on his large farm in the summer months and in his own jam factory in the winter months."

Woman Finds Profit In Taxidermy Hobby

HALIFAX (CP)—Mrs. Thomas Bromage of Halifax has made a small industry from her hobby of stuffing animals and fish.

Mrs. Bromage started designing and stuffing the novelties as a spare-time hobby but it has expanded so that now her taxidermy is winning recognition from Canadian and United States tourists.

The sea is the source of many of the articles. She has a collection of swordfish, lobster, tuna, and even what she calls a mermaid. These were sent to the National Hobby Exhibition at Toronto last summer and won for her a special award in the miscellaneous senior section.

BATH, England (CP)—Mrs. Eliza Ann King, who died five weeks before her 100th birthday regarded the old age pension as a charity. She always refused to draw it.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. E. Price of 2968 Donald Street wish to announce the engagement of their second daughter, Nelda Ruth, to Mr. Aubrey Nobbs, only son of Mr. A. V. Nobbs, 1856 Chestnut Street. The marriage will take place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Saturday, Dec. 3, 1949, at 3.30 p.m.

Rummage Sale—At the regular meeting of Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie Chapter, I.O.D.E., plans were made for a rummage sale on Saturday in Hard of Hearing Hall and members were asked to turn in all clothing on Friday. Cod liver oil to the value of $42 was given to the V.O.N. for distribution and visits were made to the sick and flowers taken, it was reported by Mrs. E. Pritchett, welfare convener. Knitted goods to the value of $38.50 were turned in and a letter of thanks read from a recipient of a parcel in England.

Victoria Husbands Not Tied To Kitchen Sink, Say Wives Who Deny Dane's Cry For 'New Deal'

By AJLEEN CAMPBELL
The Victoria housewife may be pretty but she is definitely not pampered.

And Palle Bojesen, a gentleman from Copenhagen who declared in an interview in Toronto, that Canadian men needed a new deal to free them from the kitchen sink, would be a melancholy Dane indeed, if he could but hear a few of the comments around these parts.

A group of young Victoria women, all with one or two children, who proudly give their occupation as "housewife" are only too happy to agree that their husbands give them a helping hand. But to infer said husbands are milquetoasts slaving over a hot typewriter all day and a hot stove half the night.

The essence of the courageous—mayhap misguided Dane's remarks were: "I think husbands over here do too much... set the table... carve the roast... clear and washed dishes... help with dusting and sweeping while the wife just sits and looks pretty."

SHARE THE WORK

Really, Mr. Bojesen, you shouldn't! "He's gone too far," according to tall, dark and good-looking Mrs. Kenneth R. Calderbank, 672 Head Street, who in between getting Ricky, aged 8 months ready for outdoors and setting her automatic washer in motion, had a few words on the subject for us Tuesday, when Bill Halkett, the Victoria Times photographer and I dropped by.

"Ken does the dishes at night while I get Ricky ready for bed, but most of our friends are the same way," she said. "We certainly don't have as much work to do as our mothers did, what with all the modern appliances, but we still keep busy all day long."

Mrs. Calderbank, whose husband is a petty officer in the navy, is a firm believer in the sharing method of housework, whereby the husband lends a helping hand to enable a couple to enjoy their leisure hours together.

"He is certainly not speaking of the common, garden-variety housewife," said vivacious Mrs. John M. Bond, 2002 Lorne Terrace who was busily preparing to bake a cake before the watchful eyes of David, 3 and Rosemary 1½. "That Danish chap must have met the wrong people."

"I enjoy my job and wouldn't want to change it for any career. But as for a husband doing all the household work... I don't go down to the office and do his work, why should he do mine?" Housework is not the drudge today it was in years before the multitudinous gadgets and appliances came on the scene but today's housewife and mother have no trouble keeping busy all day, in Mrs. Bond's opinion.

'BOJESON OFF BEAM'
"If my husband had to do all the household chores he wouldn't come home... I don't think any of them would," laughed pretty blonde Mrs. Robert Obee, 2129 Lorne Terrace.

"We do the dishes together in the evening but as for the rest... I think Mr. Bojesen is off the beam."

When photographer Bill Halkett wanted to take two-year old Leslie's picture and Leslie was not too sure he liked the idea, his attractive mother gave a good demonstration of the combination of psychology and patience mothers have to use all day long, in addition to carrying on such household chores as vacuuming and washing.

A new baby in the house makes for extra work for Mrs. Ronald A. Phelps, 1144 Dallas Road, and she is glad of a helping hand with three-week old Wayne's washing, when Mr. Phelps, an officer on the C.P.R. boats, is in town.

"With my husband away a good deal of the time I don't feel I have much housework to do, but I certainly don't agree with Mr. Bojesen that the husband does it all. Husbands help but that's the way it should be."

As a matter of fact, the role husbands play in the changing kitchen scene proved most interesting.

In days gone by if a wife had such a jewel of a husband she would say not a word, both for her sake and his... the women would ridicule, disbelieve or enviously say she was boasting. The men would scoff until the husband would almost have to leave town.

But today the husband who is willing to pitch in, do the odd washing, scrub a floor or dry the dishes for his wife, no longer has to have his light hidden under a bushel. Tell the boys... it's quite the fashion!

All of which goes to prove that thinkers and psychologists who have been writing books to these many years on the life of the sexes in our changing world have hit it, not the jackpot at least come near it.

Long have they been arguing that many household tasks were nothing but hum-drum time consumers, elevating nothing and no one... something to be done as quickly as possible, to enable a husband and wife to grow mentally together... to take in a play, listen to a good radio program, read good books and generally enjoy their children and their leisure time together.

As everyone knows four hands doing the supper dishes, are quicker than two.

All this Mr. Bojesen is trying to sabotage! Imagine story of the year would be the male reaction around town to the remarks of the Dane from Copenhagen... so far we haven't found a man willing to pose in his apron and feather duster.

Willows—Annual Christmas bazaar of Willows P.T.A. will be held in the school auditorium Friday, from 3 to 5. Stalls include home cooking and candy, aprons, gifts, toys and white elephant. There will be a Christmas tree with gifts for children and tea will be served.

Name Delegates—Ladies' Auxiliary to Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 12, named Margaret Carver, Bessie Rose, Lynda Wright and May Bennett, delegates to attend the institution of a provincial auxiliary in Vancouver Sunday. A meeting held Tuesday, presided over by Margaret Carver, discussed the Christmas tea to be held in Aerie Hall, View Street, Dec. 14 at 2.30. Sister Eynda Wright will be general convener.

Sewing Group—Mrs. J. F. K. English outlined plans for the sewing committee at a meeting of Christ Church Cathedral Women's Parish Guild in Memorial Hall. Miss K. Jaffray was in the chair. The sum of $10 was voted for sewing materials and a start will be made at the December meeting, Mrs. English said. A nominating committee consisting of Mrs. E. Hart, Mrs. English and Mrs. M. Jaffray were appointed. Miss Jaffray reported on the reception held for the Primate of Canada and the laymen's breakfast.

Successful Bazaar—Mrs. F. Dredge opened the annual bazaar of Esquimalt United Church and was presented with a corsage bouquet. Mrs. W. Walker, president, convoked the successful affair. Conveners of stalls were: Helen Koholy and Mrs. A. Whittle, aprons; Mrs. I. Thomas and Mrs. G. Fulmer, baby wear; Mrs. E. Boyd and Miss A. Ferguson, white elephant; Mrs. R. Irwin, candy; Mrs. W. Halmerson and Mrs. J. Denniston, home-cooking; Mrs. G. Jones and Mrs. F. Wheeler, jams; Mesdames W. Douglas, T. Penson, F. Lock and W. Parry served tea.

Sadie Hawkins Dance

A Sadie Hawkins' dance was held in Central Settlement Hall, under auspices of the Salt Spring Island Teen Town, with Stephenie Malcheski, convener, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Tester supplying the music. Adult advisers present were Mr. and Mrs. C. Whitehead and Mrs. G. Hurst. Mr. Whitehead acted as master of ceremonies. Miss Diane Beech was in charge of the canteen.

Mix finely-ground almonds with the flour for fish or veal cutlets to be fried. It gives a wonderful, nutty brown flavor and richness to the crust of the fish or veal.

Gordon Head—Members of Gordon Head P.T.A. Monday night were asked "to use your voice in an effort to prohibit the gangster type of moving pictures which are shown at children's Saturday matinees," by Percy Rayment, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council. He urged the P.T.A. to appeal to the Film Board to provide educational but still entertaining movies for these special performances. Members voted to purchase a combination radio-phonograph for the school, as well as additional sports equipment for the Boys' Club which is sponsored by the association. A card party will be held in the school Dec. 2. Mrs. C. B. Armstrong presided.

RATS AND MICE ARE VICTIMS OF BARN OWLS

A barn owl can press its toes together in such a way that they make an iron vise. When a mouse or rat is caught in the claws, there is little, if any, hope of escape.

As we might judge from its name, the barn owl often makes its home in a barn. It also may use a church tower for its nest, or it may choose an old building of some other kind.

On the average a barn owl is about 18 inches long. There are cases, however, where it has a length of only 14 inches and other cases in which it grows to be two feet long.

What an enemy this bird is of rats and mice! A pair of them in a belfry may destroy several thousand of these pests in a year.

A female barn owl lays her eggs slowly. She commonly takes two days for each egg. There are times when from seven to 10 eggs are placed in a nest. This means that the last egg may hatch from 14 to 20 days after the first one is laid.

The male bird helps to hatch the eggs. He takes turns with the mother in sitting on them. The time needed to hatch the eggs usually is about the same as for hen's eggs, but the hatching takes three days longer in some cases.

Like the horned owl, the barn owl is a big bird. It can be told apart easily, however, because it is without the ear tufts which stand out from the head of a horned owl. On the average, the horned owl is larger.

Instead of having real horns above its head, the horned owl has tufts of feathers.

The general custom in the owl family is to spend the day sleeping, and to hunt for food at night. This is true of the horned owl.

Now and then a horned owl which is resting, or trying to rest, in the daytime, is surrounded by a flock of crows. The crows peck the big bird, and it can escape being injured only by flying away.

The DOCTOR Says:

LOCAL MEASURES HELP TO CURE THE PROBLEM OF AGING JOINTS

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Osteoarthritis or hypertrophic arthritis really should not be called arthritis at all. It is really a mild degeneration or wearing out of some of the structures which go to make the joints. It is a sort of aging of the joints which shows up first in those joints which do the most work, like the knees, hips or fingers.

The exact cause or causes of this condition are not entirely understood. There may be an inherited factor, that is the cartilage and bone of people in some families may be particularly susceptible to early degeneration or osteoarthritis. Repeated injury also seems to promote the development of this condition. Poor posture, disturbances of blood circulation, and obesity are other conditions which contribute to the development of osteoarthritis.

ACCOMPANIED BY STIFFNESS

The end joints of the fingers frequently become enlarged. This is often accompanied by a certain amount of stiffness and soreness, though this usually disappears after the joints have been loosened up. These enlargements are very common in later years and are called Heberden's nodes.

The treatment of degenerative changes in the joints includes general measures aimed at relieving the discomfort and improving the over-all physical condition. Local measures designed to relieve the involved joints and prevent or correct any difficulties which are present are also used. Occupational strains should be eliminated whenever possible and posture should be corrected.

Many people become unnecessarily alarmed when they are told that they have this condition because they are afraid that they may become seriously crippled. Osteoarthritis is always a mild condition.

Question: Is there any special diet which can be used for an enlarged liver?

Answer: The liver may be enlarged in several different conditions, including heart disease, kidney disease, as well as diseases of the liver itself and other disorders. For these reasons there is no diet that can be suggested.

Cut Off From Town By Damaged Trestle

PORT RENFREW—A log boom struck the 500-foot pile trestle at the mouth of the San Juan River late Wednesday, taking out nearly 50 feet of the trestle and cutting off nearby residents from easy access to the town.

Repairs are expected to be completed within three days and in the meantime settlers on the opposite side can use boats to cross the river.

A teacher will take up temporary quarters across the river from the town to teach the few children stranded there.

No Hope For Raise, U.K. Teachers Told

LONDON (CP) — More than 200,000 teachers in Britain's state schools were told Wednesday there is no hope at present for the salary increases they have been demanding since last July.

The Burnham Committee, which sets salary scales for state-run schools, admitted there is "merit" in the teachers' case. But, it said, it could recommend no increase at present because of the economic state of the country and recent hold-the-wages-line appeals by the government.

The Burnham Committee, composed of both teacher and local authority representatives, gets its name from Viscount Burnham, its first chairman in 1919. It is the final authority in the matter.

The only alternative for the teachers would be to strike. Except for isolated cases there has been no talk of any such action.

Canada's Trade Hit High Of $5,750,000,000 In 1948

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite growing state monopolism in eastern Europe, Canada is riding the postwar world's trade boat on a crest of unprecedented prosperity.

This and other significant features of Canada's postwar domestic and external trade highlight the trade department's annual report, made public Wednesday.

The 80-page document, covering the fiscal year ended March 31, 1949, mixes the prosperity report with a grim reminder that state monopolism and bilateralism, a thorn in the side of free trade, are continuing to flourish, especially in eastern Europe.

On the bright side, the department says:

1. Production, employment and trade in 1948 exceeded the high levels of 1947.
2. "The investment boom continued unchecked."

3. The country made a recovery from the heavy debit trade balance in United States' favor.
4. Foreign industrialists showed renewed interest in establishing plants in Canada. About 500 sought information.

On the gloomy side:

1. There was a "growing tendency" by some countries, particularly in eastern Europe, to eliminate private trade and to establish state monopolies. Canadian exporters were suffering from this "concentration of bargaining power."
2. Dollar shortages continued to hamper Canadian trade, not only with the United Kingdom, but with other Commonwealth and sterling countries.

3. When South Africa announced exchange and import controls last November, it removed the last Commonwealth country from the free-trade competitive ranks. New clamorings arose from Canadian exporters for government help.

$5,750,000,000

Canada's foreign trade, totaling $5,750,000,000, reached a new high in 1948. Demand for Canadian goods, mainly in the United States, increased Canadian exports.

Canadian gold and dollar reserves, which fell to a dangerous low of about $470,000,000 in 1947, recovered in 1948, due to a $636,000,000 reduction in the debit balance with the U.S.

This reduction was accompanied by an increase of 10 percent in total trade between the two countries and to significant readjustment in the geographical pattern in Canadian foreign trade.

Exports to the U.S. touched a high of $1,501,000,000, compared with $1,034,000,000 in 1947; imports declined from $1,975,000,000 to $1,806,000,000.

Post Office Seeks Public Co-operation

Workers at the Victoria Post Office are preparing for the great avalanche of mail with which they have to contend each December.

They say they expect no difficulty in handling the Christmas mail provided the public heed a few suggestions. The suggestions have been printed in leaflet form and now are being distributed to households.

Deadline for the posting of local Christmas mail has been set for Dec. 17. Christmas card senders are advised that if they mail before this date, they can be assured of delivery before Dec. 24. There will be no letter carrier deliveries Dec. 25, Sunday, or on Boxing Day.

It will facilitate handling, postal officials point out, if only standard-size cards and envelopes are used and if the envelopes are tied in bundles before mailing. Letters for local delivery, outside points and air mail service should be bundled separately.

Health Officials Dubious Of Cold Remedies On Sale

By THOMAS R. HENRY

WASHINGTON (N.A.A.)—

U.S. Public Health Service doctors take a fishy view of the flood of common cold preventatives and remedies now being advertised for sale over the counter without prescription.

All are a variation of a common prescription for prevention of the release of a powerful chemical, histamine, in the blood stream.

This is a basic phenomenon in the so-called allergies—ragweed fever, rose fever, and the like. Their initial symptoms are very similar to those of the common cold. There is the same low feeling, headache, and nasal discharge.

But actual colds—there may be several varieties of them—have a quite different cause. They are due to one or more of the so-called filterable viruses (most minute of living organisms which also are responsible for influenza, polio, mumps, whooping cough, and a host of other diseases).

Of all the viruses known to cause various human and animal diseases, the cold virus seems to be the most elusive.

About all that is known is that some almost infinitesimally minute particle—which can be filtered from nasal discharges of persons with real colds, not allergies—will cause colds in others.

The theory of the antihistamine drugs is that some chemical, constituent in the virus itself has the effect of causing an allergy. This is impossible to prove or disprove, since there can be no possible chemical of the virus.

The new drugs are based largely on the work of Capt. John M. Brewster of the U.S. navy, who experimented with sailors at the naval hospital at Great Lakes, Ill. They do not believe these experiments were well enough controlled for any far-reaching conclusions to be drawn from them. Colds were not adequately separated from allergies. The public health doctors do not categorically deny the theory of a chemical allergy with the release of histamine. They only claim there is no proof of it.

The new remedies, the public health service doctors believe, may do some good and will do little harm, but they feel that a cure for the cold still lies far in the future.

Canadian Developments Offer Attractive Future

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA EXECUTIVES ADDRESS 75th. ANNUAL MEETING

Problems Of International Trade Must Be Solved

Toronto, November 23.—The 75th. Annual Meeting of Imperial Bank of Canada was held today at the Head Office in Toronto. The Chairman of the Board, Mr. R. S. Waidie, commented on the fact that the Bank has grown steadily over its 75 years without the aid of mergers or amalgamations, although the assets of a small Western institution serving a limited territory in Saskatchewan were purchased in 1931.

It has built up a reputation, second to none, and has won its own place in public confidence for security and service. Mr. Waidie stated that the Bank has over 390,000 savings depositors and more than 60,000 current account depositors while shareholders number 3,073. The Bank has paid dividends annually to its shareholders since its inception.

Mr. Waidie continued in part:—

Canadian Banks have always been in the forefront in opening up new territory and providing banking facilities, often actually in advance of the needs of the community, and none more so than the Imperial Bank of Canada.

In addition to catering to the needs of industry in the larger centres, the Bank has always been ready to foster industry in the smaller places and to assist the small farmer, trader, industrialist or business man, who in the long run form the backbone of the nation.

In addition to its branches in the larger places the Bank has throughout the various provinces 55 branches in communities with a population of 1,000 or less and 34 branches in communities with between 1,000 and 5,000 population. In 72 of these smaller communities the Bank owns its own premises and is a substantial taxpayer. In all these places the branch managers and their staffs are active members of the local communities.

BUSINESS IN 1949
On the whole, the year since our last Annual Meeting has been one of surprising stability. The very large investment in factories, machines, houses and services, which has been so great a factor in creating active business conditions since the war, has been fully maintained and even extended. In comparison with the previous year, there has been less investment in manufacturing plants and more in public utilities and housing. Our exports, which were expected to be under some pressure, have in total held up well. There has been some decline in particular products but, as regards markets, only that of Continental Europe has as yet shown a pronounced drop. Wages have risen but less than in previous years and there has been some slight fall in prices, they have, on the whole, been remarkably steady. Unemployment has been somewhat higher but it has been chiefly seasonal unemployment and its relative size has been small.

As in our own Bank, banking business in Canada has shown a marked steadiness and growth. Total bank assets are somewhat larger than a year ago and the increase is fairly evenly distributed among loans, securities and cash reserves.

Notwithstanding the tax reductions of the last Budget, the revenues of the National Government have continued buoyant, and despite some increase in expenditures, a sizeable budgetary surplus is being built up.

The year behind us has been one of steady achievement and prosperity, better on the whole than had been forecast.

THE PROSPECTS AHEAD
One of the most helpful developments in the past year and equally promising for the future has been the discovery of oil discoveries in Alberta and other western provinces and their rapid and efficient expansion. The area which can presently be served by the thousands producing wells has been turned from an area importing oil from the United States to one which is self-supporting. When the new pipeline and other facilities for efficient transportation become available, Western Canada will be able to supply much of the oil requirements of the East or, alternatively, if suitable trade arrangements can be made, can export large quantities to the United States, and so offset the eastern imports from the United States and Central and South America.

The great flow of capital to this area has been very important in maintaining business activity throughout the year. The rapid development of such resources presents, however, many difficult problems, problems in the fair and efficient use of natural resources and in the provision for a rapid influx in population. I should like to pay a tribute to the Premier of Alberta, Mr. Manning, and his Cabinet, for their wisdom and foresight in the provisions they have made for allotting oil-bearing and prospective oil-bearing properties, and for the care which they have exercised in protecting the public interest. In fact, I do not recall any better example in our history of the prudent and systematic management of public resources.

Other domestic factors, influencing the level of business, also promise well for the future. Despite drought, the farming communities generally have had a good year. Notwithstanding variations among particular groups, there is in total ample income in the hands of consumers to maintain a high level of purchasing.

We may expect, particularly in the larger urban communities, continued large expenditures to provide services to larger and more actively engaged populations. Transportation and public utilities, water and sewage installations, schools, hospital and other health services still represent a considerable backlog of expenditure whether it is the spending of governments, or supported by government grants, or the investment of private capital.

In the field of housing, about 100,000 units will have been completed by the end of the year. For the first time since the war more units have been built than there were new families to occupy them and we had reduced somewhat the backlog. We may expect house construction to be active in the coming year but the problem of costs is a serious one. Houses produced by the speculative builder are not selling as rapidly as before. Many people are paying rents or debt charges which are too high for their incomes. While a housing slump is not immediately in prospect, demand will be choked off unless substantial reductions in construction costs can be achieved.

If we look at our internal situation only, we must conclude that the outlook for business activity is favourable. We can never forget, however, the degree to which our economic well-being is dependent on our external trade. Almost the whole of our primary industry is very heavily dependent on outside markets and a smaller but significant part of our secondary industry requires foreign markets in addition to home demand. When we look abroad, we can see serious difficulties which may beset our path in the future.

Prosperity of United Kingdom and Europe Bound Up With America

Mr. Waidie continued:—

In speaking of this summer's crisis, we should not overlook the very substantial and real recovery which has taken place in the United Kingdom and in Europe. The production in western Germany with the exception of the pre-war level. The United Kingdom has succeeded in raising its exports on a volume basis about 50 per cent above the pre-war level. While the crisis which occurred was particularly a sterling crisis, the United Kingdom in fact had done very much more towards increasing its exports and balancing its accounts than any European country.

The United Kingdom has been enormously weakened by two world wars, but the real roots of the crisis go deeper even than that. For four centuries, Europe was the expanding and dynamic centre of the economic world. For the past sixty years or more, her position has been declining. There has been a slackening of new investment and of industrial modernization and a loss of competitive strength in external markets. The real situation has been concealed by the using up of capital, both internal and external, and by the low level of business activity in the inter-war years.

The immediate crisis has subsided. The fundamental question still remains. There must be, over the next few years, a great readjustment in world trade. If Europe is to earn her living she must sell much more to North America. But, is North America willing to accept the increase in imports which will be necessary if the United Kingdom and Europe are to succeed in balancing their accounts? Is North America willing continuously to invest abroad such export surpluses as may result from her trading? Is the United States willing to see her export surplus disappear or be converted into an import surplus? It is only by so doing that the United States will assume the full responsibilities which attach to her position as the greatest creditor nation. This is the transformation which must come about if the western trading world is to be re-created and a solid sub-structure is to be placed under the Atlantic Pact. These are the final questions of which the devaluation crisis was merely the advance notice.

There is a danger of thinking in out-of-date terms. In the thirties we thought of imports as unwanted goods and threats to jobs. Now there are many goods which we want. Moreover, high wages on this Continent have made goods with high labour contents almost too expensive to buy. It is precisely these goods which Europe can produce cheaply, for her greatest assets are the number and skill of her workers.

There is a second and for Canada a more serious consideration. The United Kingdom and Europe are naturally deficient in food and some raw materials. There is no other alternative market for a substantial part of our cereals and some other foods, our lumber and to some degree our metals.

Unless their capacity to pay is increased by the growing proceeds of their exports, Europe and the United Kingdom will be forced to seek a position nearer to self-sufficiency. If they do so, their standard of living will be sharply reduced and so also will ours. It is the United States which must accept the larger challenge. Canada's export surplus is small and we have been great importers as well as great exporters. But in smaller measure, there is also a challenge to this country. We too must be prepared to take more imports from the United Kingdom and Europe.

The great question of our economic future is, can Europe and North America achieve a new and mutually beneficial relationship, one which will improve standards of living on both Continents and place a solid foundation under the Atlantic Pact? This is not merely a challenge to governments. It is a challenge to free enterprise on this Continent whose boast it is that it has the flexibility, initiative and resourcefulness to cope successfully with new situations.

Long Term Prosperity Assured Says Bank General Manager

Toronto, November 23.—Mr. I. K. Johnston, General Manager, Imperial Bank of Canada, speaking to the 75th. Annual Meeting of Shareholders held in Toronto today, stressed the fact that the prosperity of the country at this point was undoubted and general business of all kinds was maintained at a very high level in 1949.

Mr. Johnston, commenting on general business conditions said in part: Our crops in the year were not up to those of 1948 owing to lack of subsoil moisture in the West and a prolonged drought in the East but in spite of these hindrances were substantial. General business of all kinds was maintained at a very high level and our prosperity at this point was undoubted. This is evidenced by our Statement, just read to you, as our branches cover the country and since we opened in Halifax we can say properly—from Halifax to Victoria and from the southern border to Yellowknife in the North West Territories.

Last year I mentioned the oil developments in Alberta and the iron ore in Quebec and Labrador. Undoubtedly these two developments are most outstanding and we may look to them for years as great supports to our economy.

Double Liability For Bank Shareholders To End Jan. 1st

Toronto, November 23.—An historical note of interest to Bank Shareholders was mentioned today by Mr. I. K. Johnston, General Manager of Imperial Bank of Canada, in his address to shareholders at the 75th. Annual Meeting. It concerned the notes of Imperial Bank still in circulation, and he announced that this was the last time that this item would appear in the Bank's Financial Statement. It had appeared in the Statements ever since 1876 but within thirty days after the first of January, 1950 all Chartered Banks are required to pay to the Bank of Canada the face value of all their notes then outstanding. Thereafter the Bank of Canada will become responsible for the redemption of all bank notes, and the last vestige of what was known as the double liability of Bank shareholders will no longer exist.

It seems to me that considering the geographical situation of Canada, increased population would be a great strength to us. From an internal standpoint it would lessen our dependence on exports by increasing the domestic markets and support and spread our tax burden. Our population of 13 and one half millions, is approximately that of the United States 115 years ago. We have much to offer and since our increased housing is only keeping pace with our increased yearly requirements, apart from our backlog of demand, it would be helpful if we could attract to this country skilled workers in the trades allied to the building industry.

Our attention in the Bank at this time is turned to the past as this is our Seventy-Fifth Anniversary, and if I may make a personal reference I will tell you that I have known all of the six previous General Managers, Mr. Wilkie having been General Manager when I entered in 1904. In 1875 when the Bank opened his title was "Cashier". The capital of the Bank was $300,000; we had one branch and a staff of eight. Mr. Wilkie died in 1914, then being President and General Manager, and your Bank had been built into a sound and flourishing institution of which he was very proud. We owe him much for the good foundation and the tradition of sound banking which he left. In my time in Toronto I have had the privilege of working under Mr. Phipps and Mr. Jaffray, as well as Mr. More, all different personalities but having one thought in common, the welfare of this Bank. I know that you are sorry, as I am, not to have our President with us today and I feel you join with me in the hope for his recovery.

In this new and challenging age it is yearly more difficult to predict very far in advance. We have scars to show of our troubles in the past and I believe we have a better understanding of many things as a result. The immediate present is bright but there are some matters of which a full appraisal is not yet possible, such as the devaluation of Sterling and our own exchange. Notwithstanding these and other uncertainties I feel there is an urge behind business as a whole which will make the coming year an equally good one, but business generally will be wise to continue to operate with care in the matter of strict attention to developments and maintenance of sound and balanced positions.

In closing I would like to pay a tribute to the assistance and kindly guidance I have had from our Chairman of the Board Mr. Waidie, our President Mr. Morry and our Vice-President Mr. Hobbs, and our Board of Directors, all of whom take a lively interest in the affairs of your Bank. In addition I have appreciated the support of the Assistant General Managers, Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Proctor.

Devaluation Affects Many Countries

Toronto, November 23.—Commenting on the effects of devaluation Mr. R. S. Waidie, Chairman of the Board, Imperial Bank of Canada said in part: One of the external situations which profoundly affects the future of this country is that which recently gave rise to the drastic devaluation of sterling and many other currencies. In its immediate causes, it was related to the business recession in the United States. Purchases of raw materials by the United States from the sterling area, particularly rubber and tin, declined sharply, and sales of the United Kingdom manufactures in the United States also fell off. The sterling area was simply one of the victims of the general slow-up in purchasing occasioned by the desire to reduce inventories. When it appeared that the pound was in danger, there occurred, of course, a secondary postponement of purchasing which made devaluation inevitable.

Behind these immediate circumstances, lay the fact that sterling prices of line with North American commodities, in part, insufficient progress had been made in improving the efficiency of production, but in part also prices and costs were set by the great demands of the home market and the sterling area for goods.

The potential benefit to be derived by the United Kingdom from devaluation is that, if the dollar prices of sterling exports are maintained, it will be more profitable to sell them in the dollar areas, while profit margins on sales to the sterling area will be unchanged. In respect to those articles which dollar prices are cut, there will be an improvement in the competitive position of British goods in the dollar markets. One need not, of course, be blind to the possibility that the advantages of devaluation may be quickly absorbed by rising costs in the United Kingdom, if inflation, whether it comes from government or private expenditures, is not dampened down.

Canada's devaluation is an incident in this larger background. Opinions concerning it may differ. We should, however, note that while in 1946 United States prices were much higher than Canada, the indexes now show them to be lower. The sterling devaluation, if untempered by our own, would have greatly increased the cost of imports from Canada in all parts of the sterling area. The change in the exchange rate gives an incentive to increase our exports to the United States and diminish our imports from that country which should be helpful to our balance of payments.

Our non-ferrous mining industry is prospering and during the year we saw the great Quebeck mine brought into production as scheduled—a fine engineering feat under present conditions. In connection with our gold mining industry I hope that ways and means will be found to accelerate exploration and keep it at a high level. It is of great advantage for us to know what we have, even if under present-day conditions it is not profitable to fully develop it.

It seems to me that considering the geographical situation of Canada, increased population would be a great strength to us. From an internal standpoint it would lessen our dependence on exports by increasing the domestic markets and support and spread our tax burden. Our population of 13 and one half millions, is approximately that of the United States 115 years ago. We have much to offer and since our increased housing is only keeping pace with our increased yearly requirements, apart from our backlog of demand, it would be helpful if we could attract to this country skilled workers in the trades allied to the building industry.

Assets and Deposits At All Time High

Toronto, November 23.—Speaking to shareholders at the Annual Meeting today the General Manager said in part:—"The seventy-fifth Annual Statement now before you shows total assets of $519,040,560, the highest figure yet attained." The increase for the year was $47,197,000.

PROFITS
The Profits before depreciation and taxes were $2,110,075, an increase of $273,497. Dominion and Provincial taxes amounted to $679,000. Dividends of $1.20 per share amounted to $840,000.

DEPOSITS
Deposits of $476,270,031, are also an all time high and show an increase for the year of $46,169,000. "We are happy to say we do not see any inflationary signs in these increases."

INVESTMENTS AND LOANS
Our investments not exceeding market value total $228,012,231, an increase of $26,769,000, short term Dominion securities being less by $3,826,000 due to the redemption by the Government of their Deposit Certificates; and longer term Dominion securities higher by $33,227,000—an ample portfolio of readily marketable securities.

Loans total $193,157,645, an increase of $9,877,000 of which $6,459,000 is in current loans and $3,825,000 in loans to cities, towns and municipalities. These loans are widely diversified and carefully supervised and we are doing our full part in meeting the needs of our customers, both large and small. The great number of small customers makes their business important and very welcome.

BANK PREMISES AND BRANCHES

Bank Premises account, including furniture, fixtures and equipment, stands at $6,372,376, an increase of $233,000.

Our increasing business has made it necessary to renovate and enlarge many of our branches, and in the last few years the mechanizing of branches has been greatly increased. This machine equipment has been the means of improving working conditions considerably. We are keeping our offices as up-to-date and attractive as possible.

During the year the following branches were opened—Forest Hill Village, Cornwall, Guelph, Rocky Island—sub to Thessalon, in the Province of Ontario; Halifax, Nova Scotia; East Kildonan, Manitoba; Loom Lake, Saskatchewan; Mayethorpe, Alberta; Broadway and Cambie Streets, Vancouver, British Columbia. Our new branch at Halifax, N.S., is our first in the Maritimes, and our staff who opened this branch were received with true Maritime hospitality. Including the above, we now have 208 branches, located as follows:—Nova Scotia—1, Quebec—6, Ontario—126, Manitoba—8, Saskatchewan—24, Alberta—25, British Columbia—17, Northwest Territories—1.

Staff a Most Important Asset

Mr. Johnston continued:—"During the year our staff increased 162, now numbering 2,563 of which 1,157 are young ladies. Expanding business and the opening of new branches have provided many opportunities for promotion and goes to show the progressive future which awaits young men of energy and talent who wish to take up a career with the Bank. Our Staff is regarded as one of the most important assets the Bank has, although of course it cannot be taken into the Balance Sheet. The steady increase in business which your Bank enjoys is due to the watchfulness and enterprise of our Managers and the efficiency, courtesy, and helpfulness of their Staffs, both men and young ladies. I am very proud of our conscientious, hard-working and efficient Staff of this Bank."

Higher Prices In Canada Reduce Trade With U.S.

Toronto, November 23.—Mr. R. S. Waidie, Chairman of the Board, Imperial Bank of Canada, commenting on conditions in the United States, stated the recession in the United States which was so frequently predicted over so long a period finally took shape during the past year. Business has been so active in Canada that perhaps insufficient attention has been given to conditions about which so much has been said in advance. The United States index of industrial production which stood at 191 in August, 1948, had fallen twelve months later to 170. Wholesale prices, which stood at a peak of almost 170 in August, 1948, declined in the next twelve months to 153, a decline of around 12 per cent. There were 1,900,000 unemployed in August 1948, and this year the figure was 3,700,000.

These changes do not in themselves represent a serious recession, certainly not if we have already seen the full extent of it. But, they have not been without their effects on this country. Two years ago United States wholesale prices, in comparison with pre-war levels were 18 per cent higher than Canadian prices. Now United States prices are slightly lower than ours. This reversal has occasioned some difficulty in maintaining our exports to the United States. It has meant also that there has been some increase in imports which have been priced more attractively than our own production. The most notable increase in imports has been in steel where supply rather than price has been the decisive influence. There is no doubt that without the prohibitions and quotas which still apply under the Exchange Conservation Act, the increase of our imports from the United States would have been much greater. Whether the recession in the United States has run its course, it is difficult to say. There have been some revival in the late summer and fall but there are also some signs that the revival is losing strength.

Whatever the future course may be and despite the temporary advantage given by the devaluation of our dollar, it will be well for all Canadian businesses to watch carefully their position in relation to competition from the United States.

We are keeping up with it!

Study Protection Civilians From Atom Blasts In Wartime

By STEFFAN ANDREWS

WASHINGTON (NANA)—A top-ranking government health officer says plans are in preparation to combat "unnatural outbreaks" of disease resulting from biological warfare in event of atomic attack.

Dr. Norvin C. Kiefer, director of the National Security Resources Board Health Division, says these plans are part of a nation-wide medical mobilization program now in the blueprint stage.

While he does not disclose specifically what these plans are, Dr. Kiefer reveals that "extensive studies of health resources and requirements are now well under way by a number of existing agencies and organizations."

He adds that because of this prospect of fighting mass diseases most of the trained doctors in the next war will be assigned to the civilian population rather than to the military forces.

SURGEONS PARLEY

Dr. Kiefer's comments are contained in an officially approved statement prepared for delivery before the convention of the Association of Military Surgeons meeting in Washington.

"In the Second World War," says Dr. Kiefer, "the greatest sacrifices of professional personnel unquestionably were made by the civilian population."

"But in a future war, because civilian needs will be far greater and more strategically important than previously, it is quite likely that it will be the military forces which will have to accept the largest reduction in allocations."

"If such reductions are necessary, it must be remembered that such a war can be lost just as quickly and conclusively by a breakdown of industrial production as by loss of military battles."

Dr. Kiefer says that civilians were just lucky that there were no major pandemics in the last war, such as the influenza outbreak of World War I.

"We dare not rely on nature to be so kind to us again," he declares. "Furthermore, we must be prepared for unnatural outbreaks of disease resulting from biological warfare."

Dr. Kiefer believes that a backlog of medical supplies and professional resources must be made now, during peacetime, to make certain that the necessary allocations are made for civil defense purposes.

Arion Male Choir Plans New Season

Victoria's Arion Male Voice Choir, now singing its 58th season, will present another heavy schedule of concerts according to James A. McVie, choir president. Many new choral arrangements are being rehearsed for future appearances, and new voices have been added to all sections. The choir is conducted by Frank Tupman and Mrs. Helen McVie is the accompanist. The choir makes its first appearance of the season under the auspices of the St. Paul's Anglican Church W.A., Esquimalt, Dec. 2, in Lamson Street School auditorium. Soloists will be Kyrle Symonds, Les Harmsworth, Roger Gray, Nelson Ball and James McVie, and new choral works will include "Glorious Forever" (Rachmaninoff), "Must I Then Part from Thee" (Otto), "The Pilot" (Protheroe), and the popular Peter De Rose composition "Wagon Wheels."

Dec. 7 the Arion club will present its second concert at the Metropolitan Church under the auspices of the Young People's Group. Spring concerts to be given will include appearances in Youbou, Duncan and Port Alberni.

'Hot Zoot' For Air Force Crash Crews

The newest fireproof suit for air-crash rescue crews is made of 18 layers of glass fibre materials, silver and aluminum foils. At Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O., the air force showed how a fireman can walk into searing, 2,000-degree-plus flames, stay as long as 10 minutes and emerge unhurt. The suit has its own built-in oxygen supply.

Schmidt's First Goal Ruins Toronto Leafs

Milt Schmidt, a smooth piece of hockey machinery who's been operating on the professional scene for nine fruitful seasons, picked a tense moment last night to score his first goal of the current National Hockey League campaign.

Schmidt unleashed a solo dash and broke up a 1 to 1 deadlock against Toronto Maple Leafs as his last-place Bruins gained a 3 to 1 victory in Boston.

The 31-year-old playmaker alternating on offensive and defensive posts for the last two seasons, broke up the hectic game midway in the last period. The second-place Leafs had a four-man attack in motion when the six-foot centre grabbed the puck and lashed a 15-foot backhander past goalie Turk Broda.

In the only other game the leading Detroit Red Wings had their hands full in turning back New York Rangers 4 to 3. The New Yorkers staged a last-period rally that just failed to gain a tie.

The victory gave the Red Wings a string of nine straight games without a defeat. It also gave them a nine-point lead over the Leafs.

THREE-WAY TIE

The Bruins' win moved them into a fourth-place tie with the Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks. All have 13 points.

At Boston, the Bruins—who have managed only five victories in 17 starts—got their last goal after Broda was yanked from his chores for a sixth attacker with 80 seconds left in the game. Perelson, who got two, scored that one when he rifled a 30-footer into the open cage.

In the third period Detroit had two men serving time and New York one when the Rangers pulled goalie Chuck Rayner in favor of another forward. But the New Yorkers got another penalty seconds later and Rayner went back to his duties.

Both Detroit and Toronto get back into action tonight. The Leafs take on the third-place Montreal Canadiens at Montreal and the Red Wings clash with the Black Hawks at Chicago.

NEW YORK-DETROIT

First Period—1, New York, Stanley 8:17. Detroit, Carvello (Kelly, Lindsay), 11:20. Penalties: Lindsay, Kelly, Stanley, Rayner, Lumley, Stanley.

Second Period—1, Detroit, Lindsay (Martin, Abel), 10:08. 4, Detroit, McPadden (Black), 13:30. 5, Detroit, Carvello (McPadden), 15:47. Penalties: Morrison, Rowe, Stanley, Lamirande.

Third Period—1, New York, Lund (Slowinski, Kaleta), 15:47. 7, New York, Slowinski (Frost), 16:09. Penalties: Elshardo, Pele, Peters, Reize, Egan, Stewart, La. Penalties: Toppanali, (misconduct).

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Clarence Henry, 180; Los Angeles, knocked out; Lonnie "Battling Black Jack" Craft, 181, Phoenix, 4.

'Y' In Late Rally To Nip Arrow Cagers

Closing with a rush Y.M.C.A. came from behind to nip the Arrows, 46 to 43, in last night's senior A cage feature at the High School gym.

It was the fifth game of the series between the two clubs and the "Y's" third straight victory. The association club will now definitely meet the Western Washington College Vikings in the Dec. 3 exhibition game at the Fernwood gymnasium.

It was the same story in last night's game. Johnny Clark:

This time the big centre accounted for 21 points—his highest total of the season. And it was only through his first-half efforts when he scored 10 points that the "Y" was in a position to stage its last ditch rally.

With Duff McCaghey showing the way Arrows jumped into the lead in the first half and weren't caught until the final few minutes. McCaghey popped in four field goals for eight points in the opening session.

ARROWS SLUMP

Leading by a 24 to 18 margin at the intermission, Arrows' defence weakened in the second half and with Rookie Wright and Vic Dale supplying Clark with some much needed help the "Y" came on to win.

Wright with 10 points took runner-up scoring honors. Ernie Fox and Fred Ranson divided high-point laurels for the losers, each with 12.

In other games on the card, Victoria High School trimmed Victoria College, 34 to 23, in an exhibition game and Mount Talmie edged the "Y's" 19 to 14, in an intermediate B boys' clash.

Buzz Hudson was high man for Vic High with 11 points closely followed by Bob Rowe with 10. Naylor paced Vikings with eight.

GAMES TONIGHT

A double header—senior B program will be presented at Naden tonight with Senators playing Western Heating in the first game at 7 and the Navy host to Knott and Elford in the finale at 8.

Teams and scorers follow:

Y.M.C.A.—Clark 21, Wright 10, Dale 8, Tooby 3, Olsen 2, Field 2, Anderson 12, Arrow Furniture—Fox 12, P. Ranson 12, J. Ranson 4, McCaghey 10, Castner, Pryor, Hanson 4, Curtis, Anderson 1.

Victoria High—Rowe 10, Parker 2, Hudson 11, Robb 4, Woollett, Garner 6, Oakley, McIntosh, Zarry, Hendry 1.

Victoria College—Naylor 8, Field 2, Blair 4, McKay 3, Hill 6, Ranson, Bebb, Carroll.

Y.M.C.A.—Powell 2, Bett 2, Duggan, Campbell 2, McMillan 2, Brice 1, Coulter 2, Chuchowich 3.

Action In Inter-High Cup Rugby Clash

Bill Vogel, left, Oak Bay forward, prepares to tackle Bobby Clarke of Victoria High, who is in the process of getting by an unidentified Bay forward during the first half of yesterday's Howard Russell Cup tilt. Pete Zarry of Vic High is at the extreme right.

In a hard-fought game at Windsor Park Wednesday afternoon, Oak Bay High moved into the commanding position in the Howard Russell Cup rugby series by copping the opening game by a 5 to 3 score over the V.H.S.

Teams will play the second game of the best-of-three series next Wednesday at Central Park.

The first half, although scoreless, produced some good rugby, despite the fact that the ball was slippery and both squads were guilty of costly fumbles. The strong Oak Bay team held the upper hand in the territorial play due to a stronger backfield.

COSTLY MISS

Losers lost a golden opportunity of moving into the lead—the points which would have won the classic—when Norm Kowalyk missed a gift kick from 30 yards out early in the second half.

The underdogs finally opened the scoring in the bitterly-contested fixture halfway through the second session, however, with Cedric Robb crossing into pay dirt following a lineout. Kowalyk missed the conversion from a difficult angle.

For the next 10 minutes play centred around the Vic High goal line, and Bays were finally rewarded when Alan Richardson fell on a loose ball behind the line. Jimmy Burns added the extra points on the conversion attempt and that was the game.

Play remained deadlocked in the V.H.S. zone for the final minutes of the contest, but winners failed to increase their lead.

Police Called As Hockey Game At New Westminster Blows Up

Reinforced Los Angeles Monarchs last night struck out of the cellar to floor the southern division leading San Francisco Shamrocks 4 to 2 in a Coast League hockey game.

It was Shamrocks' fourth loss of the year against 13 wins and two ties. It was Monarchs' fourth win. They have lost 15 games and tied one.

Monarchs were reinforced by five newcomers. Jack Meldrum from Edmonton, Alberta, scored one Monarch goal and assisted on two others.

Touring San Diego Skyhawks trounced the undermanned New Westminster Royals, second-place northern division team, 4 to 2 in a rough game. Police were called in to restore order after the crowd held up play more than five minutes in the third period.

Clay Lavell of New Westminster went to the hospital for treatment of facial lacerations after being checked heavily by Pete Tkachuk.

Then the club made its first swing into Saskatchewan to play Moose Jaw Canucks twice. Regina Pats once, and Medicine Hat Tigers on the return trip. The experts predicted the club would be lucky to win one game on the trip.

But Pachal suddenly caught fire, racking up 11 points and leading the club to three victories in four contests.

Pachal continued to sizzle as he picked up nine more points on home ice when the club knocked over Calgary Buffaloes and Regina Pats.

Great Secrecy Marks Stampeder Workouts

Hayman Places Great Record On Block Saturday

MONTREAL (CP)—Lew Hayman has never coached the losing team in a final for the Dominion football championship.

He never has been beaten in the eastern Canadian final, only once has a Hayman-coached squad failed to make the Big Four play-off.

That's the record of this serious, 40-year-old executive-coach who will send his Montreal Alouettes against Calgary Stampeder in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto Saturday.

Coach Hayman's accomplishments properly date back to 1933, the year after he came to Canada by way of Paterson, N.J., his home town, and Syracuse University.

In that same year, his first crack at Canadian football as a full-fledged coach, he piloted Toronto Argonauts to the Canadian title. He gave Argos two more, in 1937 and 1938.

In the war years Hayman was an officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force and in 1942 coached the inter-services R.C.A.F. Hurricanes to the Canadian championship.

Since coming to Montreal in 1946 he has been in the Big Four playoff three times in four attempts. Now, a winner in the eastern final, he moves into the all-Canadian thriller with a powerful team built from scratch in four short seasons.

Hayman was one of the founders of the club that immediately gave a life-saving shot in the arm to a game dying in Canada's metropolis.

BIG BUSINESS

Financial backing was not lacking and Leo Dandurand, long known among Canada's sportsmen, became president of the new organization. Now the club is an operational proposition of at least $100,000 yearly.

The Dandurand-Hayman combination was a natural from the start. Behind them was a board of directors of both English and French-speaking Canadians. Hayman was named managing director as well as coach, a job that keeps him and his office staff busy the year-round.

Two things were needed for the brand new organization: a team and public support. Hayman picked up talent locally, visited football hotbeds of Canada and headed south for American players.

The build-up followed—showmanship, business sagacity, bands, color, publicity, all rolled into one. But there was still some doubt about the attitude of the French-Canadian, almost a total stranger to football.

Then came the announcement of the new team's name—Les Alouettes—a name storied in folk-song. The French-Canadian, ever a lover of sport, was practically sold then and there.

Announce Officials For Football Final

TORONTO (CP)—Hec Crighton of Toronto will referee Saturday's east-west football game between Montreal Alouettes and Calgary Stampeder.

This was announced today by Percy Robinson, secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union. Of the five officials he announced, four are from eastern Canada and one from the west.

Besides Crighton, they are: Umpire, Seymour Wilson, Hamilton; judge of play, Jimmy Simpson, Hamilton; head linesman, Andy Belber, Winnipeg; down boxman, Bob Lye, Hamilton.

Champion Wildcats Badly Beaten By Saskatoon Gridders

SASKATOON (CP)—Hamilton Wildcats, newly-crowned Canadian junior football champions, suffered their first defeat of the season Wednesday as Saskatoon Hilltops, runners-up to Vancouver Blue Bombers for western Canada honors this fall, rolled to a decisive 16 to 2 victory on snowy Griffiths Stadium. More than 4,500 fans braved the wintry weather to watch the exhibition contest.

Wildcats, who defeated Saskatoon a year ago for Canadian honors, are on their way home after winning the title for the second straight season at Vancouver.

Their victims, the Blue Bombers, had previously nosed out Hilltops in the last minute of play to win the western crown and the right to meet the eastern champion Cats.

Diminutive fullback Ron Tinkler made a brilliant 70-yard runback of a Hamilton punt in the first quarter to set Hilltops up for their first major score. He also accounted for Saskatoon's final touchdown late in the third frame.

Quarterback Frank Szombathy scored Hilltops' opening major after Tinkler's run while hulking centre Ron Atchison, after blocking a Wildcat punt at centre-field, was credited with Saskatoon's other major.

Hamilton's points came from a second-quarter safety touch. Receiving a Wildcat kick over their lines Hilltops attempted to boot the ball back out and Bill Brady hauled down Saskatoon's Keith Peberdy to put the 'Cats on the score sheet.

Normie Hill, the 20-year-old end who picked the sleeper pass out of the air in the 1948 cup final against Ottawa, arrived shortly before the practice and was going full steam ahead. But there were two notable absences.

Woody Strode, big negro end who wrestles professionally in the off-season, put on his sweat suit but he was a passenger throughout. Sugarfoot Anderson, the much-ballyhooed passer-receiver with hands like tennis racquets, stayed in bed—victim of the flu bug.

Strode, who suffered a bruised shoulder in the Calgary-Regina western Canada final, is giving the shoulder a chance to heal and he will "definitely" go in against Montreal, according to Lear. Anderson turned up for dinner after the workout and said he was a "sure starter" Saturday.

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—It could be that Coach Les Lear is showing those "unauthorized" Ottawa-Montreal Big Four football playoff final films to his Calgary Stampeder but any outsider around the Stamps camp wouldn't know it.

But one thing is certain: There's a lot of hush-hush stuff going around at their highway tourist-cabin headquarters.

Departing from his custom of a two-day practices at the nearby Appleby College ground, Coach Les Lear has halved this outside work and has adopted behind-locked-doors skull sessions. The blinds of the main cabin, a 200-foot-long building, are drawn and the doors locked while Lear takes to his defending Grey Cup champions.

The outsider wouldn't know whether they are "stealing" some of the Alouette plays, via smuggled films, before their Grey Cup date with the eastern champions at Toronto's Varsity Stadium Saturday. Films are being shown—and probably they have a lot to do with the Riders-Als final—but no one is saying.

The heavy equipment—about the size of a club-bag—Lear carries into the "chalk talk" looks mighty suspicious to hovering newspapermen.

OUTSIDERS GET RUSH

If Montreal hopes to reciprocate and "steal" some of the Calgary plays, their scouts are in for a tough time. Stampeder practice grounds are situated well off a highway and some energetic students have been posted at the only entrance to keep outsiders from the property.

Lear had his first secret workout here Wednesday afternoon, with only a few sports writers on hand, and it was one of the toughest scrimmage sessions of the season. The players were told by Lear to "let her rip" and the way they went at each other was an invitation to injuries, but they came out of it without a scratch.

Normie Hill, the 20-year-old end who picked the sleeper pass out of the air in the 1948 cup final against Ottawa, arrived shortly before the practice and was going full steam ahead. But there were two notable absences.

Full Schedule On Tap For City Soccer Clubs

Five games make up this week-end's soccer schedule with the feature attraction being the Coast League clash between Victoria United and New Westminster Royals at Athletic Park at 2.30.

The game means little to both clubs except as a tune-up for the second-half schedule as St. Andrews have already sewn up the first-half title.

No official line-up for the locals was available today but manager Dave Huggins will probably strip the same club which edged Vancouver City last week.

In District League play a full schedule is on tap with two games Saturday and another pair Sunday.

Second-place Victoria West, with the best record in the league in the last five weeks, goes up against Canadian Legion at Upper Beacon Hill at 2.30 while at Heywood Avenue at the same time, Duncan clashes with the winless Alcos.

Sunday's double bill finds league-leading Esquimalt meeting Heaney's at lower Beacon Hill at 2.45 and Oak Bay tangling with Navy at Heywood Avenue at the same time.

With only two points separating the first six clubs, the games will have a definite bearing on the league race.

Lethbridge Sons Take Over Lead In Junior Hockey

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Lethbridge Native Sons are in undisputed first place in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League on the strength of the circuit's first shutout of the young season. Native Sons vaulted one point past Medicine Hat Tigers, leaders since the start of the season, by blanking the fifth-place Calgary Buffaloes 3 to 0 last night.

Boomer Rodzinyak, Lethbridge goaltender, performed brilliantly to achieve the shutout before 2,500 hometown fans.

Native Sons scored a goal a period for their victory, singletons being collected by Steve Gryschuk, Joe Wood and Bill Chandler. Gryschuk blasted in a 30-footer, Wood's counter came from a scramble and Chandler ended scoring on a two-way passing play with Guyle Fielder.

Fielder's one assist gave him 28 points, one less than the league's scoring leader, Cern Pachal of Crow's Nest Pass Lions.

Tigers, on their first road trip of the season into Saskatchewan, play the Pats at Regina on Friday.

THE LAD WORD

Notre Dame tub-thumper Charlie Callaghan forwards this transcript of what was said in the huddle just before the Irish passed on fourth down in their own territory while trailing North Carolina 0 to 6. . . . Bob Williams told his teammates: "Lads, its fourth down and we should punt, but we're going to pass. So be alert, this play may cost me my job. . . . And Larry, if you don't catch this pass, I'm going out to the nearest exit and won't even go back to the bench." . . . Maybe Notre Darners are a different breed of footballers, but a lot of guys we know would have started out the nearest exit the moment Bob said "Lads."

Doug Bentley of Chicago rides alone in fourth place with five goals and a dozen assists for 17 points, one up on Boston's John Peirson. Table Tennis Meet Under Way Tonight

The 15th annual Victoria Club table tennis tournament commences tonight at 7.30 in the Strathcona Hotel.

Victoria Junior Hockey Squad Beaten At Nanaimo

Nanaimo's junior hockey club made it two straight over city junior hockey clubs last night by defeating the Victoria Minor Hockey Association club 7 to 3. Last week the up-landers trimmed the Navy squad by the same score.

Winners took a 2 to 1 lead in the first period and then jumped into a 5 to 1 margin with three goals without a reply in the second stanza.

The Victoria club showed to its best advantage in the final count when they held Nanaimo on even terms, each team netting the puck twice.

Parks scored two of the Victoria goals with Dozois notching the third.

Nanaimo, Navy and Victoria are expected to form a three-team junior circuit which will commence play early next month. There is a possibility of Kerrisdale also entering the league.

Play will continue Friday with finals in all events on Saturday night.

This year's championship has attracted a large and classy entry with keen competition assured in all events.

Defending champion Nancy Craig will defend her women's singles title and though favored to win should receive strong competition from Val Druce and Ruth Rogers.

Stan Ngai, hardest hitting of the four Chinese brothers, is top seeded in the men's open singles. His main opposition will be from Eddie Ngai, Western Canada champ; Will Browne-Cave, former provincial titlist, and many other outstanding aces among whom Ray Dawson, holder of the Victoria league record, is probably the most effective. Tonight's draw follows:

7.30—C. Branson vs. R. Sherratt; E. Goodwin vs. B. Canova; T. Lowe vs. W. Browne-Cave.
8.00—J. Burns vs. A. Wright; O. King vs. R. Jackson; R. Dawson vs. Canova; C. Branson vs. Neal Craig.
8.45—T. Lowe vs. J. Woods; W. Tuthill vs. E. Goodwin; Pat Whitehouse vs. winner of Branson and Sherratt.
9.30—F. MacDonald vs. R. Barnes; Neal Craig vs. K. Olson; I. Lindquist vs. O. King.

William Baylis, City Hotel Owner, Dies At Age 88

William Baylis, who served in uniform during three wars and who for many years was proprietor of the Queen's Hotel in Victoria, died here Wednesday night at age 88.

Mr. Baylis served with Imperial troops in the Egyptian campaign of the Sudan War; with the 103rd Battalion, C.E.F., in World War I, and with the British Home Guard in World War II. A real patriot, Mr. Baylis applied for re-enlistment in the Canadian Army at the outbreak of the last war, but was turned down because of his age. He was 73.

Fired with the desire to do his bit, he paid his own way to Britain and enlisted there in the Home Guard, being wounded in an air raid attack.

Mr. Baylis had lived in Victoria for 48 years. Besides his hotel, he ran the city badminton club.

He is survived by his widow, Rachel Baylis; one daughter, Mrs. J. H. Nankivell; one son, F. W. Baylis; a brother, F. Baylis, all in Victoria, and three sisters in England.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at Sands Mortuary. Rev. K. L. Sandercock will officiate at 1.30. Cremation will follow at Royal Oak.

Govt. Seeks Power To Support Prices

OTTAWA (CP)—Power to keep prices support measures for fish and agricultural products in force until the next general election is being sought by the government.

Fisheries Minister Mayhew and Agriculture Minister Gardiner today gave notice in the Commons they will seek extension of the Prices Support Act until dissolution of the 21st Parliament.

Fish price support was authorized by Parliament and went into operation in 1947, with no termination strings attached. The Agricultural Prices Support Act went into force in 1944, was renewed again in 1946 and again in 1948. This act would normally expire next year.

Run On Coffee

While waves of panicky buying have cut deep into coffee stocks, U.S. roasters are hustling to keep supply channels filled. Here, William Redman and John Nee, coffee blenders at a Boston plant, load bags of green coffee beans on a carrier to go to the roasters. Industry spokesmen say there would be plenty of coffee if customers would only buy normally.

Social Crediters Of Alberta Debate Varied Resolutions

CALGARY (CP)—Several hundred delegates were registering today for the two-day annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League.

The convention, coming on the heels of a one-day annual meeting of the women's auxiliary, already has more than a score of resolutions awaiting action, forwarded from the young people's group and the women's auxiliary.

Registration and a welcome from Don Mackay, newly-elected mayor of Calgary, were slated for early sessions today. Resolutions were listed to come before the convention in groups later today and tomorrow.

Among those the delegates will decide on are two similar sets approved already by the women's auxiliary and the young people.

One asks that the provincial government pass legislation to deal with sex criminals. It says that since jail terms seem to be no solution for the growing problem, some other means be found to curb them.

Another asks the provincial government to clarify the gambling situation. It says some gambling, such as bingo games, is on the borderline of legality and the provincial government should state definitely what games are legal.

Three resolutions on old age pensions were combined into one by the women's auxiliary, asking for minimum pensions of $50 a month at age 65.

Escapees From Borsal School Held; Facing New Charges

CALGARY (CP)—Gordon Stanton, 18, of Vancouver, and Neale Vander Haighe, 18, of Victoria, who escaped from the New Haven Borsal School near Vancouver early Wednesday, and Sheppard Hammill, 34, Penticton, B.C., were arrested today by Calgary police.

The three were caught in the automobile of Dr. R. B. Francis, Calgary R.C.M.P. physician, which had been reported stolen Wednesday night. Police spotted the stolen car, forced it into the curb and arrested the occupants. Stanton and Haighe admitted escaping from the Borsal school. They said they had stolen an automobile in Vancouver and had driven to Golden, B.C., where they abandoned the car after an accident.

The trio will face charges of automobile theft.

Radio Man Named Mayor Of Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—Ald. Don Mackay early today was elected mayor of Calgary with an ultimate majority of 2,368 on the third count of ballots in Wednesday's civic election. Calgary uses the preferential vote system.

Runner-up in the four-way contest was Ald. Paul Brecken. J. C. Watson, present mayor running for his third two-year term, was eliminated on the second count.

Ald. G. M. Brown, who trailed from the start, was not at any time a contender. Lethbridge-born, 35-year-old Mackay is the youngest mayor in Calgary's history. He is a radio station manager.

His total on the third count was 16,374 against Brecken's 14,006.

In the Calgary voting system, a successful candidate must poll a majority—exceed the total vote of his opponents—and not merely a plurality as in some cities.

Mrs. Rose Wilkinson, P. N. R. Morrison and R. T. Alderman were the first elected to the council. Counting continued today.

There were eight vacancies.

Loses Life In Vat

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 47-year-old laborer fell to his death Wednesday in a vat of scalding lye at the Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive shops in suburban Weston. He was Josef Kardasz, whose body was immersed in the 12,000-gallon vat approximately six hours. No one saw the employee fall.

Island Coal Mines Show Output Gain

Vancouver Island coal produced 6,001 more tons of coal in last month than in October of last year but the provincial total for the month fell short of the previous October's.

The chief inspector of mine reported today that the island production last month was 50,844 short tons. Throughout the province last month 147,922 tons of coal were raised, compared with 150,495 tons for the previous October.

In the Nicola-Princeton district production slipped from 7,907 tons in October, 1948, to 3,291 tons last month, and in the East Kootenay district production was down to 90,391 tons last month from 95,533 tons in October, 1948.

The northern district showed a gain from 2,212 tons in October, 1948, to 3,396 tons last month.

The biggest island producer last month was No. 10 mine, South Wellington. Its production was 19,861 tons.

Invite Candidates To Address Meeting

All mayoralty and aldermanic candidates in the Dec. 8 elections will be invited to speak briefly at a luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in Loughheed's Banquet Hall.

The meeting is being arranged by the chamber with a view to stimulating interest in civic affairs.

Endorse Candidates Named By Executive

Membership of the Non-Partisan League on Wednesday night endorsed the civic election slate which the executive of the organization elected early this month.

The non-partisan candidates are:

Ald. Aubrey Kent for mayor; Ald. Waldo Skillings, Ald. Margaret Christie, Charles Hanley, W. F. Pinfold, Percy Scourrah and Edward Malek for aldermen; J. E. Neely for police commissioner, and R. H. Green and Arnold Travett for school trustees.

Ald Kent called for support at the polls of all non-partisan league candidates. He did not want an antagonistic council.

Thomas Denny told the meeting the league was formed to overcome public apathy toward municipal politics. The league did not make suggestions to elected representatives, he added.

9,655 Tons Herring Taken Last Week

B.C.'s herring fleet, fishing the upper east coast and the west coast of Vancouver Island, took catches totaling 9,655 tons last week, a report today of the chief supervisor of fisheries said.

There was no fishing off the lower east coast and middle east coast of the island, quotas there having been taken earlier in the season.

Last week's catches brought the total for the season to date to 65,025 tons—the highest at this time for five years or more. The catch at this time last year was 56,182 tons.

Bulk of the catch has gone to reduction plants which to date have produced 10,282 tons of herring meal and 1,608,060 gallons of herring oil.

Canneries to date have produced 39,128 48-pound cases, while 116 tons have been used fresh, 133 tons have been frozen, 275 tons have been used for bait and 778 tons have been dry salted.

Restaurant Lighting Adds Zest To Meals

Percy Fletcher gave an interesting talk to the Victoria branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association at the B.C. Electric Douglas Street office on the important part lighting plays in creating the desired atmosphere in a restaurant. He showed graphically how different types of light affect the appearance of food generally thus illustrating how effective lighting can increase a customer's appreciation of a well served meal through eye appeal.

A colored film, "Seeing Is the Biggest Thing in Selling," was shown. Myles Hague spoke on the practical fundamentals of lighting from restaurateur's point of view. Mr. Hague dwelt on the importance of the average lay person's need for consulting independent authorities because of the high degree of technical skill required to attain a satisfying lighting effect.

J. E. Cooper gave a hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the Restaurant Association to J. M. Bond, chairman.

Case Of U.B.C. Professor May Cost Tass Immunity

By WILLIAM BOSS

LONDON (CP)—Vladimir Krajina, a botany professor at the University of British Columbia, figured largely in a House of Lords debate Wednesday.

What Lord Vansittart, former head of the British Foreign Office's German section, had to say about him prompted the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Jowitt, to reply that Britain, in consequence of Krajina's experiences, may be "driven" into changing her laws governing diplomatic immunity.

Krajina, former professor at Prague University, last year failed in two libel suits against Tass, the Russian news agency, because that organization produced in court certificates saying it is a state organ and therefore immune.

Krajina's case, Lord Vansittart told the Lords, was "an exciting story—a mixture of nobility and dirt—and of the murder of a man's reputation."

He said the professor was a Czechoslovakian war hero on whose head the Nazi government had placed a price. Krajina "set up a transmitter and told us of German intentions to invade Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France. He told us of German intentions with regard to ourselves."

But the Communists disliked Krajina, and in 1943 betrayed him to the Gestapo.

When Krajina took poison, the Gestapo pumped it out of him. Meanwhile, the Gestapo killed his brother and placed his wife in a concentration camp. In addition, Krajina's son died while serving in the R.A.F.

After the war, the Communists accused Krajina of collaboration with the Nazis, but he was acquitted on all of 36 charges and awarded the two chief Czechoslovak military decorations.

Last year, after he had left Czechoslovakia and the government of Clement Gottwald seized office, Krajina was retried and sentenced in absentia to 25 years' imprisonment.

Continued Lord Vansittart: "There is in this country a nest of guttersnipes called Tass. They charged Krajina in print with foul crimes. Krajina fought a libel action and lost. He took it to a higher court and lost, but that higher court gave him permission to appeal to the House of Lords.

"How does anybody expect that an unhappy exile is going to find hundreds and hundreds (of pounds) for trial after trial?"

'BRAZEN TRICK'

After recounting how Tass' certificate of immunity was honored in British courts, Lord Vansittart asked for legislation "to annul this cynical certificate and make it sure no such brazen trick will ever be perpetrated on us again."

"Even so, there will be no redress for Professor Krajina because such legislation must necessarily take some time and may not be retroactive."

"Meanwhile, he has left in penury a country for which he did so much and which has done so little for him."

Lord Vansittart suggested Tass and the Soviet radio monitor should be given until the year's end to publish an apology and public withdrawal, failing which both should be closed down and their personnel ordered to leave the country.

Twilight Homes Ltd., a recently-formed company, is behind the project.

Will Urge Citizens To Use Their Vote

Victoria's Junior Chamber of Commerce is going to see as many voters as possible turn out at the polls Dec. 10.

The young businessmen's organization has had "Get Out and Vote" campaigns in previous years, but this year intend to conduct a more vigorous drive than ever before. A committee, headed by Jack Williams, is charged with directing it to a successful conclusion.

The junior chamber has already undertaken to sponsor an open meeting at which all candidates for the office of mayor will be invited to speak. Date of the meeting has been set as Dec. 6. The meeting will be held in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden, beginning at 8. Dr. J. W. Ewing, principal of Victoria College, will act as chairman.

During the week immediately prior to election day, the committee will conduct a vigorous publicity campaign to bring attention to the election and the issues involved.

On election day, the junior chamber will provide cars to transport voters to and from the polls if they do not have transportation of their own.

'Flying LST'

The U.S. Air Force's giant new Douglas C124A transport has clamshell nose doors and a built-in folding ramp, similar to the landing ships of World War II, making it unnecessary to dismantle heavy military equipment for loading. At top, mechanics at Long Beach, Calif., manoeuvre the air giant out of its hangar. Below, left, wheels of the nose landing gear are big enough to withstand the shock of landing with loads up to 50,000 pounds. Below, right, the clamshell doors swing open ready to take on rolling cargo. Two full-size city buses with passengers will fit in the fuselage. The heavy duty plane is 127 feet long and has a 173-foot wingspan. Fully loaded, it can fly 1,000 miles, unload and return to base without refueling.

Lights To Brighten Hotel Driveways

The Empress Hotel grounds will be brightened up at night. Workmen are currently engaged in installing lamp standards on the two main driveways at the north and south ends of the hotel in order to give better vision at night to patrons. Heretofore the driveways have been comparatively dark at night because of the trees which line them. One report is that the lights will do much to prevent pilfering of guests' cars which has occurred at intervals in the past.

Complaints of poor telephone service in the municipality were repeated at Saanich Council meeting Tuesday night. Members supported Arthur J. Ash, M.L.A. for Saanich, for his recent stand opposing a B.C. Telephone Company application for an increase.

Mr. Ash, in his brief to Premier Byron Johnson urged that the Albion, Colquitz and Belmont exchanges be incorporated as part of the Victoria Telephone dial system.

Poles Clear Warsaw Rubble To Build Homes For 50,000

By VINCENT BUIST

WARSAW (Reuter)—The first of several workers' settlements is rising on the ruins of the famous Warsaw ghetto, razed by the Germans during their occupation.

During the next five years, it is hoped to house some 50,000 people there.

This new "workers' city" will stand about nine feet above the normal ground level of the area.

To clear all the rubble of the ghetto area to the level of the surrounding streets would, it is calculated, take 10,000 workers with seven trains and other salvage equipment at least three years.

A determined attack on the task of clearing the ground in the ghetto area ready for the builders was made last month when nearly every Pole in Warsaw who could handle a pick and shovel went to work on it.

VOLUNTEER LABOR

Stanislaw Holwinski, Mayor of Warsaw, appealed to every able-bodied man, woman and youth living in the city to give up eight hours during the month to work on bombed sites, salvaging bricks which could either be used for patching up damaged houses or plants, or be manufactured into new brick slabs.

The people of Warsaw responded enthusiastically. Within a short time over 10,000,000 usable bricks had been unearthed and stacked ready to use again.

Every day, workers converged on the site of the former Warsaw ghetto, perhaps the most melancholy memorial to race hatred in Europe. It is certainly the most completely annihilated district in a city which was 85 per cent destroyed by war.

It is a wilderness of 700,000 square acres of charred and rusty rubbles. Only two objects break that desolate horizon.

One is the spire of a Catholic church, spared because it had no link with Jewry. The other is a 30-foot-high monument in granite and bronze erected to the memory of the heroes of the ghetto.

In the early part of their war-time occupation of Poland, the Germans walled in the Warsaw ghetto and transformed it into a staging camp for Jews on their way to labor or concentration camps.

With arms smuggled in through sewers the Jews rose in revolt of the spring of 1948. After six weeks' ferocious fighting against German S.S. troops, the revolt was quelled. But it is claimed that at least 20,000 Jews were slaughtered during the fighting.

Canada Paper Mills Out To Shatter All Production Records

By JAMES R. NELSON
MONTREAL (BUP)—Canadian newsprint mills have set themselves a target of shattering all records in production this year, and hope—if worldwide currency devaluations do not upset their plans—to continue the trend through 1950.

Two months before the end of the year, Canadian mills had piled up output totaling 4,324,689 tons, a 4.7 per cent increase over production in the same period last year. The target for the year was at least 5,000,000 tons, and it appeared certain on the basis of previous production trends that the figure would be reached.

If so, it would be the first year in the history of the newsprint industry that Canadian mills reached or surpassed the 5,000,000-ton mark.

According to forecasts prepared by the Newsprint Association of Canada, total Canadian production this year would reach 5,150,000 tons. Next year, the association hoped, the over-all total of newsprint produced in this country would reach 5,110,000 tons.

These figures, the association said, included forecasts of production by Newfoundland mills, whose figures were not included in past records, before union of the two countries.

Some Parents Hate Their Children, Says Psychologist

MONTREAL (BUP)—People don't realize how much parents hate their children, according to Professor Louis Chatel, psychologist at the St. Mary's Hospital child guidance clinic here.

He believes the error comes in swallowing whole an age-old belief that mother love is the normal and typical attitude of the parent towards its offspring. Professor Chatel told reporters that in child guidance interviews it was common for parents to express "negative feelings," and not only those parents who have problem children. Evidence was accumulating that every parent on some occasions and to some degree felt annoyed and out-of-patience with his child, he said.

When this attitude tended to outweigh the love feelings of the parent it was known to psychologists as "rejection." He said the course of the parent's feeling was all-important in determining the child's emotional security and in influencing the development of personality.

Professor Chatel said that studies had shown that genuine love of the parent gave the younger security and helped him to develop a stable and socialized character. But parent hatred aroused aggression, encouraged instability and led to unsocial behavior.

End Of Seasonal Unemployment Is Aim Of Labor Men's Scheme

By BRIAN O'LEARY

OTTAWA (BUP)—Labor men, though not weathermen, are keeping a close eye on Canada's changing climatic conditions.

Day in and day out of late, officials in both the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor headquarters were boning up on Canada's spring, summer, fall and winter seasons.

The reason was that so many of Canada's workers were at the mercy of climatic conditions each year, making Canada a country of great seasonal employment. The trade unionists wanted to see if something could not be done about it.

They found that about one-fifth of Canada's non-agricultural workers were regularly unemployed because of the weather. Since labor leaders could not change Canada's climate, they felt that Canadians themselves must take certain steps to offset the weather's adverse effects.

COMPLETE CO-OPERATION

One step, they thought, could be taken by the National Employment Service, in co-operation with management and labor, to provide regular supplementary employment.

They said this would be a task calling for complete co-operation in planning, with labor mobility, proper wages and working conditions and a genuine desire by labor and management to work out the problems.

The solution might also lie in some cases in changing consumer habits, they said, while in others it might mean development of by-products or supplementary goods manufacture.

Union hiring halls were also suggested as being part of this scheme, they said. They assured a stable and experienced labor force to be called on at all times.

The Fourth annual B.C. Products Fair sponsored by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held in the arena, May 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. Chairman of the fair is Don Smith, vice-chairman, Norman Parkins; quiz program and entertainment, Jim Isaac; printing program and scrapbook, Earl Dickenson; gate and floor manager, Bill Walker; publicity, Happy Holmes and Clyde Elford; school children, Laverne Sands.

TRENDS IN BUILDING COSTS—Building costs have declined in the United States, but not very much, from their all-time peaks of 1948. A brick home that cost $5,000 in 1910 costs four times as much to build now. The new chart above shows how the cost of building has followed right along with the cost of building materials since 1910 and construction workers' wages since 1934, the first year when comparative statistics became available. Data is from the Cleveland Trust Company and the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

New Yacht Club Commodore

M. Porter was elected commodore of the Capital City Yacht Club at the annual general meeting Wednesday evening. He succeeds Commodore E. Henshall.

Other officers elected for the year were: Victor Griffin, vice-commodore; Clair Watts, rear-commodore; and Maurice Aitkin, fleet captain.

Executive committee members elected were: L. Blazen, J. A. Bostock, P. Pitt and L. Pelland.

A complete report on the club's activities for the past year was given by the retiring commodore, and the financial statement was given by Guy James, secretary.

At the end of the meeting, which was in the Liberal Committee Rooms, club members held a dance.

Remand License By-Law Test Case For Judgment

Magistrate H. C. Hall will decide whether the city trades license by-law is valid or invalid.

After hearing arguments for and against by Herbert Davey, defence counsel, and Claude L. Harrison, city prosecutor, Magistrate Hall in city police court today remanded a test case on the by-law to Dec. 1 for decision.

This is the trial of J. R. McIlree, 620 View Street, charged with carrying on the occupation of barrister and solicitor without being the holder of a subsisting trades license.

Through Mr. Davey, the Victoria Bar Association is challenging the validity of the city by-law on trades licenses.

While defence counsel earlier pointed out Mr. McIlree admitted that he did not pay the treble license fee, a not guilty plea was entered for the purpose of contesting the by-law.

Last week Mr. Davey claimed the onus was on the prosecution to show where an honest survey had been made to show where the by-law would not raise more than $200,000 revenue for the city, the maximum for trades license fees, allowed by an amendment to the 1922 Statutes of B.C. especially for Victoria.

He asked for dismissal of the charge.

However, Mr. Harrison today, in lengthy argument in reply to defence counsel's submissions, stressed that the defence had not shown throughout its argument where the statutes had been violated to make the city by-law a "bad law."

Dominion Bank Assets Set Record

A strong liquid position, with deposits substantially higher for the year, and increase in commercial loans, and a new high in assets, are features of the 79th annual statement of The Dominion Bank just sent to shareholders.

Assets are shown at a new high of $426,000,000; net profits, after government taxes of $835,000 and bank premises write-off of $395,000, total $1,001,195; and profit and loss account after paying dividends of $700,000 at $1 per share, was increased by $301,195 to a total of $1,355,705. Capital of $7,000,000 and reserve of $10,000,000 are unchanged.

Total deposits were $388,605,000, showing an increase over the previous year of more than $30,000,000. Non-interest-bearing deposits by the public reached a total of $134,403,000, up $8,600,000. Interest-bearing deposits of $232,061,000 were up $18,466,000. An increase of slightly more than $3,000,000 was shown in balances carried by federal and provincial governments which totaled $2,140,000.

Cash assets of $93,009,000 equalled 20.86 per cent of public liabilities; immediately available assets of $249,055,000 were over 62 per cent of liabilities.

Poetry Played Its Part

They said this baby would have to be placed in an orphan's home, as there were no living relatives. "What a shame," that the lady who didn't have any babies of her own. "I have a nice home, and an extra room, which could be made into a nursery. (But I couldn't go out as often as I had. I would probably lose sleep when he cried or was sick. He would be extra work. He would need lots of things). These things I thought, but then I read..."

Take heed of this small child of earth.

He is great, he hath in him God most high.

Children before their fleshy birth Are lights alive in the blue sky.

In our light, bitter world of wrongs

They come: God gives us them awhile.

His speech is in their stammering tongue.

Their sweet light rests upon our eyes.

Alas! Their right to joy is plain.

If they are hungry, Paradise Weeps, and if cold, Heaven Thrills with pain.

The want that saps their sinless flower

Speaks judgment on sin's ministers.

Man holds an angel in his power.

Man holds an angel in his power.

When God seeks out these tender things

Whom in the shadow where we sleep

He sends us clothed about with wings.

And finds the ragged babes that weep.

"I made application for this baby and got him for a six-month period of probation and then we legally adopted him."

"We love him as our own, but have told him we picked him out of all the babies in the world, and adopted him because he had no mother or father to love him."

He understands, and the other night when I was putting him to bed, he said, "When I die I hope God will turn me into a baby again, and if YOU are up in Heaven, I will pick YOU out for my real mother, for YOU are the only mother I want."

"That paid for all the work... all the trouble... and all the nites I stayed awake when he was small. Thank God for babies, and thank God for poems, too."

MAKES ITS MARK ANYWHERE

The Innocent Impostor

By Renee Shann

THE STORY: Patience Mond goes to London three times a week to attend dressmaking school. It is the only freedom allowed her by the two old-fashioned aunts who have brought her up and with whom she lives in the country. She always returns home on the six-thirty. Paul Taylor takes the same train and for some time now has been trying to pick her up. But Patience is too proper to talk to a strange young man. One evening, an accident halts the train about a mile from her station. Paul offers to walk her there, so she won't be too late getting home, and she accepts. He asks her to meet him at nearby Stortford the following Saturday for tea and movies. She tells him her aunts would never allow it. Fate intervenes, however, when Aunt Helen asks Patience to go into Stortford that very Saturday to change a library book. As her train pulls in, Patience sees Paul waiting for her on the platform.

There was nothing available on her aunts' list so Patience had to choose a book for her. She decided on one she thought her aunts might enjoy, and the girl at the desk said it was a "very pleasant little story."

"Sounds awful," said Paul. Patience smiled.

"Aunt Helen will like it all right. Mind you, Aunt Alice reads thrillers."

"The devil she does! I'd like to meet Aunt Alice."

WANTED TO BE GAY

"She's really the gay one of the two. At least I always feel she'd like to be, only of course she's never had much chance. Aunt Helen is a much stronger character. She's older than Aunt Alice."

"I see. Are there only just the two of them?"

"That's all. There was another sister. My mother. She was very much younger. She died when I was seven."

"Poor little mouse!" he said softly. "You can't remember her, I suppose?"

"Oh yes, I can. Only not very clearly. But she was absolutely lovely. And always very gay and full of fun."

"Like you could be if only the opportunity offered. Look, let's have an early tea and go to the flicks after." He led her into a tea-shop as he spoke and over to a little table in a far corner. And when the waitress had taken their order: "Tell me more about yourself, and your maiden aunts, and your mother who was so lovely and so gay."

Patience drew off her gloves and laid them beside her bag on the table.

MOTHER RAN AWAY

"It's really because of my mother that my aunts have brought me up so strictly. She ran away when she was 20 and married an acrobat." Her eyes hardened. "My grandparents cut her off completely."

"My goodness!"

"My father deserted my mother. She died in the South of France. Someone wrote to the family lawyer. By that time my grandparents had both died. My aunts went down to Cannes at once. You see, they knew my mother had had twins—she sent them a little photograph one Christmas without a word. Just a photograph of herself and her babies."

He stared at her.

"Good Lord, there aren't two of you?"

She shook her head.

"No," she said wistfully. "I often wish there were. My aunts arrived expecting to find me and my sister, and found I was there by myself. There was some Frenchwoman looking after me."

"But didn't she know what had become of your sister?"

"No. And there wasn't anyone who could tell my aunts anything. They did all they could to trace her. Without any luck. In the end they came back to England bringing me with them."

"And you've been with them ever since?"

"Yes," her voice warmed with affection. "They've been absolutely wonderful to me!"

INVITED TO DANCE

He looked at her and saw that she meant it. There was a candid simplicity in her hazel eyes. She lived in her own little world and was unaware that it was bounded by high walls.

"Don't you ever feel you want to be really gay? Go to a wild party? Chase up to town with some young man—me, for instance—and dance till the small hours?"

She frowned.

"I don't think I'd like a wild party. And I did once dance till the small hours."

"Once! And you're 20 years old! Listen, will you come to a dance with me one night? They have them here at the Town Hall every Saturday. I'll drive you home after. I'll borrow my father's car."

She looked at him and though she longed to say she would—there was nothing she'd like better—she knew it was impossible. Her aunts would never allow it.

"Truly, I can't, though I would like to."

He decided that it was a subject to which he could return later. Some other Saturday afternoon perhaps. Because somehow or other he was going to see to it that this meeting was repeated. But for the time being—

He glanced at his watch. "The big film starts in a quarter-of-an-hour. If you drink down that cup of tea right away we'll just about make it."

(To be continued.)

WATCH YOUR ENTRIES AND WIN CONTRACTS

For years Gen. Gruenther has been secretary of the Vanderbilt Cup tournament committee.

Today's hand was a most appropriate one to discuss with the general who makes plans for combat operations. There were enough high cards in the North and South hands to justify the three no trump contract, but the distribution of the spade suit was unfortunate.

If the general had won the first spade trick, there would have been nothing but defeat; but he let East hold the first trick with the queen. When East returned the eight of spades, the general won it with the ace. Now the nine of hearts was won in dummy with the jack and a small club led. Here the general had to risk everything with the finesse of the queen of clubs. When it held, he had to get back into dummy to lead the other club, so he led the 10 of hearts from his hand.

Be careful now! Do not win this trick in dummy with the queen of hearts. You must win it, as the general did, with the ace. Then he led the small club. If East had played low, there would have been no problem. Declarer would have won the trick with the ace and led another club. But East made a smart defensive play. He went right in with the king, and the general let him hold the trick. East returned a diamond, which was won in dummy with the ace, and now the general led the queen of hearts and overtook it in his own hand with the king.

If he had made the mistake of winning the second heart trick with the queen, he would have had no entry into his own hand. But by carefully planned strategy, first with the spade suit, then with the club suit, and last but not least, with the heart suit, three no trump was made.

VISITS ESKIMO GIRL.—Ven. Archdeacon Donald B. Marsh, commissary of the Diocese of the Arctic, visits Akeenk Luchts, only Eskimo patient at the Mountain Sanatorium, Hamilton, Ont. With Mrs. H. O. McAndrew, Dominion Dorcas secretary for the Church of England Women's Auxiliary, he examines the New Testament in Eskimo, which the archdeacon has just presented to Akeenk. Bob Wiest Paces Regina Squad To Win Over Leaders

REGINA (CP)—Regina Capitals, beginning to roll after a brief spell in the cellar, came through with three goals in the last period last night to whip Calgary Stampede 4 to 1 in Western Canada Senior Hockey League game. It was the second straight setback for the pace-setting Stampede, their longest losing streak of the young season.

The result stretched Caps' unbeaten string to five games, made up of three victories and two tie games. The Allan Cup finalists of last season now are three points behind the second-place Edmonton Flyers.

The revitalized Regins were led by 27-year-old Bob Wiest, recent acquisition from Victoria Cougars of the Pacific Coast Professional League. He scored two goals and Ab McDougall and Gordie Staseson picked up singletons. Veteran Doug Cairns got Stampede's lone counter.

Stampede, who hold a three-point margin over Edmonton, meet Flyers at Calgary on Friday in the first of three meetings in six days between the two clubs.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Maureen O'Hara, who co-stars with Fred MacMurray in Twentieth Century-Fox's new comedy, "Father Was a Fullback," now at the Capitol Theatre, has, according to her friends, the strangest hobby in Hollywood. She makes a needlework record of each of her pictures, with a sampler featuring the title of the film.

Express Thanks For Road Work

MESACHIE LAKE—Provincial government officials were the guests of honor at a luncheon given here Wednesday by the Hillcrest Lumber Co. in appreciation for work done in re-surfacing of the Duncan-Lake Cowichan highway.

Among government officials attending were Public Works Minister E. C. Carson, Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb, Labor Minister J. H. Cates, Mines Minister R. H. McDonald, Andrew Whisker, M.L.A. for Cowichan-Newcastle, and N. M. McCallum, of J. Haller, government engineers.

Thanks on behalf of his company were expressed by Brian B. Gattie, general manager of Western Forest Industries, Honeymoon Bay.

General manager, Jack Drew, of the Hillcrest Lumber Co., welcomed the guests.

Musical At Atlas

Dan Dailey and Shari Robinson, 10-year-old Indianapolis moppet, dance their way through some of Hollywood's top dance numbers that were popular in the years between 1924 and 1938 in "You're My Everything," the new Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor musical, currently at the Atlas Theatre.

DOMINION THEATRE

The hard-working American housewife will appreciate knowing that screen star Jeanne Crain confesses making movies is easy compared to washing dishes and ironing.

The comely star claims that feeling even goes for such a film as Darryl F. Zanuck's major production of 1949, "Pinky," now at the Dominion Theatre. Jeanne appears in all but four of the picture's 242 scenes in her most challenging screen assignment in seven years of acting before the cameras.

ODEON THEATRE

Going up the rigging of the flagship Santa Maria for a scene in "Christopher Columbus," Sydney Box's ambitious Technicolor production, now at the Odeon Theatre, one of the actors suddenly yelled: "My hat and wig have blown off!"

Immediately a brown body hurtled past him from high up on the mainmast and plunged into the Caribbean, emerging a few seconds later as Michael ("Jock") Shand, complete with the missing articles and a broad grin.

Gift News at Eaton's

Come Christmastime and everybody begins wishing all men could be happy with a nice tie on the morning of the 25th; then the only shopping problem would be a sudden shortage of cravats! But, let's face it, men aren't all alike (as far as gifts go) and so the populace is doomed to doubt and indecision when shopping for its men. However, take heart, for without going any farther than our Jewellery Department we've come up with these suggestions:

At some time or another a man is sure to travel, and even if it isn't very often he'll appreciate this little "Travelalarm." It's a clock that can perch on his night table or fold up camera-like in its leather case for easy packing. A European import... luminous dial and alarm all for 15.75.

Here's a dandy for stogie smokers... a fancy gimmick imported from England that provides the most dignified method of removing the tip of one's cigar known to mankind. If you're interested, ask for a Cigar Tipper... it's done up in sterling silver and priced at 8.50.

If he's immaculate about grooming you can't go wrong with this brush set. It's a beautiful gift... in sterling silver, intricately engraved with monogram space. Nylon bristles for function. Incidentally, if you're the Lady of the House you'll appreciate the fact that they look lovely on a bureau. Also an English import this set sells for 25.00.

Any big Boy Scout on your list? Then he'll take to this like a camel to the desert! It's a pocket knife that'll look just lovely on a key chain, or watch chain, or whatever it is that men do with pocket knives... anyway, it's a two-bladed affair with space for a monogram. In fine steel from Sheffield, England. Other knives with stag, buff, sterling and pearl handles. Priced from 1.50 to 7.50.

This is a helpful hint if his watch strap is beginning to look a little frayed. It's a handsome combination of fine mesh and expansion links that will fit any size wrist. This one you'll find for 10.00. Made in England... 1-20 of 10k natural gold filled.
